General view of the wreck. End of Santa Fe vestibuled chair car in the center rests upon end of the car in which Mr. English was killed.

Culver's Siding on the Colorado Midland, one mile above the famous resort station of Cascade, in Ute Pass, through the far-famed scenic grandeur of which the Midland has hauled hundreds of thousands of people in the past, was at 10:10 yesterday morning, the scene of one of the most miraculous railway disasters that has ever occurred in Colorado.

It was terrible in that the cost of the life of one man, Francis M. English, one of the best-known and best liked musicians in Colorado Springs, and in that it brought many more to long weeks of suffering, some to deformity for life and a score and ten to more or less serious injury. But it was marvelous in that there were not many more casualties than actually occurred.

In the shapeless heap that contained the wreckage of seven cars there were 371 passengers, excursionists en route from Cripple Creek to Colorado Springs, availing themselves of the low rates in force, which rates are to expire tonight. To anyone of the many people who went from this city to the scene of the disaster or were close at hand when it occurred, no explanation of the single death can be given. It was a miraculous escape for all who were not injured.

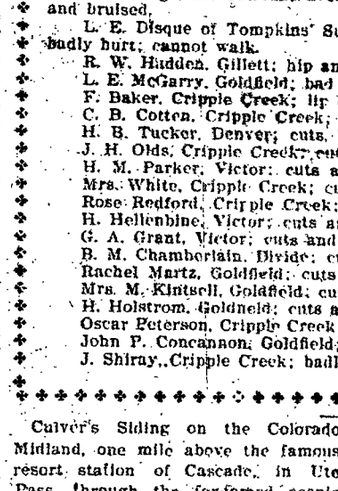
The scene of the wreck would be about the last place that anyone picking out a dangerous place on the line would select. Culver's Siding is a mile above Cascade, where the track is straight for a considerable distance, where the grade is comparatively easy and where there is nothing whatever to obstruct the view. These facts, however, doubtless are in a measure explanatory of the fact that the accident occurred. They probably made the train crew willing to risk a higher rate of speed than would have been undertaken on a manifestly dangerous stretch of track, and they probably caused the operating department of the company to devote more attention to the condition of its track at other places than at this particular point.

The accident was unquestionably caused by too great a rate of speed on a poorly maintained track.

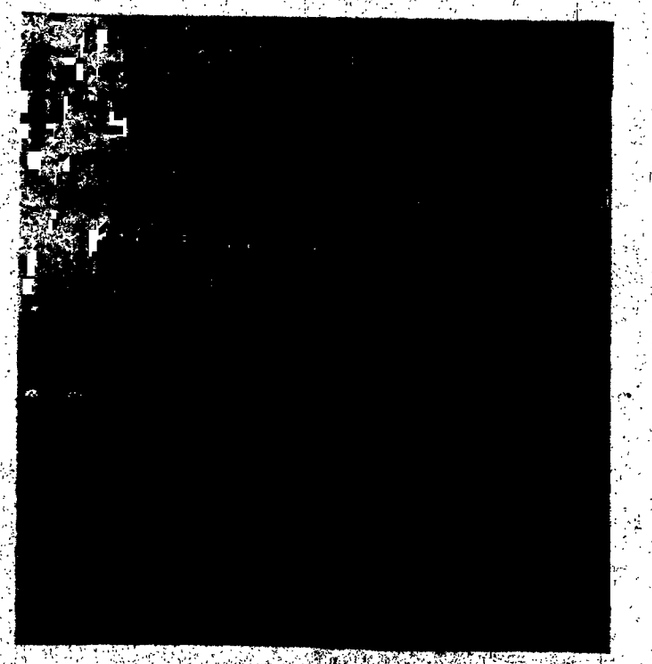
Situation at the Wreck.

The train consisted of seven cars, all of which were derailed. The engine, in charge of Engineer John B. Stephen of Colorado City, crossed the switch at the west end of the siding and had proceeded down the grade about a train length when a rail broke. The break was about a foot and a half from the end of the rail, and was in probably the east or lower end of the rail. The awful blows that fell upon the rail by the wheels may be imagined when it is known that the rail was picked up after the wreck in nine pieces, only one of which was long enough to require more than a boy to lift.

The baggage car was driven off its trucks, and slid into the ditch beside the track. It rolled completely over, stopping right side up, thirty feet north of the track, resting in the sand without trucks. The second coach was turned completely over, end on end, so that when it stopped the rear end was forward and the car nearly on its side. It was in the rear end of this coach that Mr. English met his death. The third coach, a Santa Fe chair car, was driven clear through the bottom of the second, reducing the latter to mere splinters, and it was in this awful confusion that Mr. English was caught between two seat cushions and strangled, unconsciousness probably coming instantly and death very soon. The fourth and fifth cars were derailed, strained and twisted, but not telescoped, and few people in these cars were injured. The sixth and seventh coaches of the train left the rails, but were not overturned. The seventh was not damaged more than to break a few windows. The sixth was not overturned, but has a list to the left, and was badly wrenched.



HARRY P. PACKARD, M. D.
Harry P. Packard, the young physician who was on the wrecked train and gave first aid to the injured, is well known in Colorado Springs. He attended Colorado college four years, graduating in 1900, and later took a medical course in Denver university, after which he took up the practice of medicine in Gilbert and was appointed surgeon for the Midland Terminal railroad.



View of the wreck. Extreme right shows roof of the baggage car right side up in cross bottom 20 feet from the track.

Relief Train Sent.

Immediately after the wreck occurred Conductor Ben Beynon, who resides in Colorado City, sent word to the company's offices there. A relief train was made up and a hurry-up call for physicians and relief supplies was sent out. The company's surgeons here made up the relief party and proceeded up the pass.

The physicians and surgeons who went were: Dr. P. H. Perkins, Dr. G. E. Tooley, Dr. Reynolds, Dr. P. O. Hanford, Dr. D. I. Christopher and Dr. George, of Colorado Springs; Dr. Dooley, Dr. Winternitz, Dr. Rollo McCreery and Dr. Weston, Colorado City; Dr. Rich, Dr. Beck and Dr. Steele, Manitou; Dr. H. P. Packard, Gillett, and Dr. Wills, Greeley, both of whom were on the train, Dr. Wills having got aboard at Green Mountain Falls, where he is spending a vacation.

As soon as the news of the wreck reached this city there was considerable excitement on the streets and many people awaited further tidings with fear, knowing that loved ones were on the train.

A big crowd gathered at the Santa Fe depot to meet the train bearing the injured to this city. It pulled in at 1:20, and along with the injured passengers was a corps of 15 physicians and surgeons who had gone up to render what aid they could. The injured were moved to carriages and were taken to St. Francis hospital, where Dr. Percy A. Perkins, the Midland surgeon in this city, took charge of them. He was assisted in the operations and in the dressing of the injuries by a number of the physicians and surgeons of this city, Colorado City and Manitou, also by Dr. Packard of Gillett.

Care of the Injured.

Mary O'Rourke, a little girl 13 years of age, was the one to receive the most serious injuries, her wounds [illegible]

As soon as the car in which he was riding stopped, he realized [illegible] going wrong and [illegible] out of the car, taking [illegible] with him. WHAT CONGRESS HAS ACCOMPLISHED

SESSION JUST CLOSED HAS BEEN A BUSINESS ONE. MANY QUESTIONS OF FAR-REACHING INTEREST.

By Associated Press.

Washington, June 29.—The work of congress is now practically closed, so that it is possible to sum up the record of what has been accomplished during the past seven months, which constitute the first session of the fifty-seventh congress. The session has been marked by exceptional business activity, with many questions of far-reaching interest attending. With the exception of the Cuban reciprocity bill, most of the larger subjects of general legislation have been enacted as laws or will become such before the session closes. Notable among these larger measures is the isthmian canal bill, which consummates the efforts of a half century to link together the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific. Aside from its national and international importance this bill probably involves a larger sum of money than that covering any other single understanding by the government outside of war expenditures.

The Philippine civil government bill is another measure of far-reaching importance, extending to our remote possession a national government, together with coinage, currency, banking, corporation, timber and homestead laws.

Among the other important general laws enacted are those repealing the war revenue taxes; extending and making more effective the Chinese exclusion laws; establishing a tariff for goods to and from the Philippines; extending the charter of national banks for twenty years; establishing a permanent census office; restricting the sale of oleomargarine by placing a high tax on imitation butter; providing a consular and diplomatic service for Cuba; establishing an extensive system by which the government will aid in the irrigation of the arid sections of the west.

The repeal of the war revenue taxes reduced taxation $73,350,000, and is said to be the largest single reduction of taxation ever made in this country. By this step the last of the taxes imposed at the beginning of our war with Spain are wiped out. The Philippine tariff act imposes 75 per cent of the Dingley tariff rates on articles coming from the Philippines to the United States, and also imposes on articles entering the Philippines from the United States the rates of duties established by the Philippine commission. The oleomargarine act results from several years' agitation. It places a tax of 10 cents a pound on substances colored to imitate butter.

The irrigation act is of special importance to the development of the west. It creates an irrigation fund in the treasury department, into which is to be paid the proceeds of the sales of public lands in the arid states. This fund in turn is to be used in storing water and establishing irrigation systems, the irrigation sections to be open to homesteaders, who are to be charged a proportionate share of the cost of the improvement.

The Chinese exclusion law continues exclusion "until otherwise provided by law," and also applies the exclusion "to the island territory under the jurisdiction of the United States."

Aside from these important laws there are a number of other measures of general importance which have passed one or both houses, but have not progressed to the final stage. These include the anti-anarchy legislation, which grew out of the assassination of President McKinley. Bills restricting anarchy and throwing safeguards about the president have passed both houses, but it has been impossible to reach an agreement in conference, so that the subject goes over until next December.

A bill giving statehood to Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma, known as the omnibus statehood bill, passed the house and the senate has determined to take up the matter early in the next session.

The ship subsidy bill secured early attention in the senate, but the end of the session has come without the measure being reported to the house. As it passed the senate, the bill grants subsidies to steam and sailing vessels of American build. In the house it has been deemed desirable to let the subject go over until the short session, when it is expected that a bill on the subject will be reached and urged to passage.

A bill passed by the senate, and likely to become a law, changes the marine hospital service to a national health bureau and gives the bureau larger powers and facilities for cooperating with the state health authorities in quarantine and health affairs.

The bill to establish a cable between the United States, Hawaii and the Philippines was retired by defeat in the house.

The bill for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people passed the house practically by a unanimous vote, but in the senate has received little attention and is not likely to pass.

The house passed a bill relating to the immigration laws, codifying and amending these laws relating to important changes. It has been reported to the senate, but there is not much prospect of its passage at this session. The bill defining the meaning of conspiracy in injunction cases passed the house of representatives, but has not much impression in the senate. On the other hand, the senate passed an important measure creating a department of commerce, to be presided over by a cabinet officer, but it has made no progress in the house.

Another bill of interest to the commercial world is the pure food measure, which was drafted by the pure food congress, and after extended hearings from the house committee on commerce.

The Fowler bill probably was the most important financial measure which has been brought before congress. After much discussion and several conferences, it has gone over for consideration until next December. Another financial measure, known as the Hill bill, providing for the coinage of subsidiary silver and for the retirement of the present standard silver dollar, has passed the house, but has not been acted on in the senate.

Among the other important measures of general legislation not heretofore named which have finally been enacted as laws are the following:

To prevent the sale of firearms, opium and intoxicating liquors to the natives of certain of the Pacific islands; to promote the efficiency of the revenue cutter service and to provide for the retirement of its officers; to refund the duties paid in Puerto Rico on articles imported from the United States during the military occupation; appropriating $200,000 for the relief of the volcano sufferers at Martinique; authorizing the erection of buildings on United States military reservations; regulating the introduction of English game birds for the purpose of propagation; providing for the protection of game in Alaska; such as caribou, moose, etc.; refunding the amount of legacy tax paid by charitable, benevolent and eleemosynary institutions.

The amount of appropriations for the session will run unusually high, owing in part to the amount required to build the isthmian canal. When Mr. Cannon submitted a general estimate of appropriations a few weeks ago, he made the total up to that time $681,445,000; since then the canal bill has passed, carrying a present appropriation of $40,000,000 for the franchise, and enough more for the rights of Columbia and for beginning the work to carry the total up to $50,000,000.

The entire cost of the undertaking is approximately $184,000,000. Mr. Cannon's estimate also omitted contracts for future expenditure included in the omnibus public buildings bill, the omnibus claims and various other bills, aggregating a large amount. This will carry the total for the session, figuring in these future amounts, almost, if not quite, up to the billion dollar mark. The appropriation bills have contained little general legislation, being confined chiefly to the regular needs of the various branches of the government. The naval bill provided for an addition of two armored cruisers, two battleships and two gunboats to the navy, and a provision is still in controversy as to whether one of each class of these ships shall be built in government yards.

There have been several investigations during the session which have attracted much attention. An investigation of conditions in the Philippines, conducted by the Philippine committee of the senate, has led to the examination of many witnesses high in the conduct of civil and military affairs in the islands. Another senate inquiry has related to the condition of affairs in Cuba, especially as to sugar. In the house sensational charges made in connection with the purchase of the Danish West Indian islands led to an investigation, which disclosed the groundless nature of the charges.

A MEMORIAL TABLET

Washington, June 29.—A tablet of white marble, bearing in letters of gold a brief statement of the life and deeds of William McKinley, the tribute of his friend Judge Thomas Anderson, formerly of Ohio, but now a member of the bench, was unveiled in the Metropolitan M. E. church here today.

The unveiling was attended with simple ceremony, in the presence of some of those who had helped the dead president in many of his doings. The American flag that concealed the tablet was drawn aside as the congregation sang with deep feeling, "Nearer My God to Thee." The tablet occupies a position on the north wall of the main auditorium, midway from the two entrances. President Roosevelt and Secretary Cortelyou were present. Addresses were made by Rev. Dr. Frank Bristol, pastor of the church; Senator Fairbanks, Representative Grosvenor and Representative Robert W. Taylor of Ohio, who now represents the district formerly represented by President McKinley.

ALL QUIET AT CAPE HAYTIEN

By Associated Press.

Cape Haytien, June 29.—There has been much fighting here today, and great excitement prevails. Admiral Killy, commander of the Haytien troops has a large quantity of ammunition on hand for protection of General Firmanie of the candidates for the presidency for the republics.

Since 8 o'clock this morning there have been several lively engagements between the men from the fleet, and the revolutionists from the north. Several machine guns were set up in commanding position by General Firman's force, and an attempt was made to drive the men from the north from their positions. Notwithstanding the fire from the machine guns, detachments of the northern revolutionists made several attacks on General Firman's followers and at last were eventually dislodged.

In the meantime the vessels under the command of Admiral Killy were bombarded.

There has been a lively exchange of shots down the streets of Cape Haytien all day long. The firing was particularly heavy between noon and 3 o'clock, and between 4 and 5 o'clock this afternoon.

CRIPPLE CREEK NEWS NOTES

Wreck and Wreck Caused Much Excitement---Suicide of Ernest N. Gray.

Cripple Creek Bureau
Colorado Springs Gazette.

Cripple Creek, June 28.—Fearful lest their relatives or friends have been killed or injured in the wreck this morning on the Colorado Midland road near Cascade, large crowds in Cripple Creek, Victor and other towns of the district eagerly scanned the bulletin boards in front of the newspaper offices and read the meager details of the accident and the list of dead and injured published in the extra edition of the local papers. Train No. 8, over the Midland Terminal road left this city this morning at 8 o'clock with ten well-filled coaches. It being understood that this would be the last Sunday of the 40-cent round trip rate between the district and Colorado Springs, a greater crowd than usual from the district took advantage of the rate and after the train had wended its way through the camp and picked up its quota of excursionists at each station, it was a very heavy train. The crowd was a happy one and the trip was being thoroughly enjoyed until the disaster happened. About 150 members of the Bellman club, a Swedish organization of this city, occupied the last two coaches, but fortunately the members escaped injury.

Dr. Estelle Lewis, a young woman practicing dentistry in this city, was reported dangerously injured, and the newspaper offices have been besieged with inquiries regarding her condition. Mrs. William Van der Weyden, wife of Alderman Van der Weyden, had a very narrow escape and was brought to her home in this city, and is now under the care of Drs. Torrance and McKown. Mrs. Van der Weyden is dangerously injured, and the doctors cannot state tonight whether or not she will recover. However, they say that a crisis will be reached in her case tomorrow. Her escape and the escape of her baby, Eunice, was miraculous. She was sitting in a seat near the rear end of the second coach and was holding the baby in her lap when the crash came. Mrs. Van der Weyden and her baby were thrown almost the entire length of the car. The baby was thrown under the car, but escaped all injury except a slight scalp wound. A large boulder alongside the track supported the wreckage so that the little one was not touched. Mrs. Van der Weyden was pinned for half an hour under a seat, while across her feet was the dead body of Mr. English of Colorado Springs, who was instantly killed. After half an hour's work, Mrs. Van der Weyden was released. She is badly bruised and has sustained severe injuries on the head, neck and limbs. A physician on the train took half a dozen stitches in a gash in her neck and on her head. She insisted on returning to her home with her baby and son, Willie, who had jumped from the rear platform and escaped with a sprained ankle.

At a late hour tonight large crowds still congregate in front of the newspaper offices. Inquiries are numerous relative to the condition of Mrs. Simon O'Rourke, the wife of Victor's street commissioner, and her daughter, Mary, who is reported to have lost an arm in the wreck and to be fatally injured.

Ernest N. Gray, aged 34 years, manager for the Midland Ore sampler in this city, and a prominent mining man and lessee of the camp, committed suicide at 2 o'clock this morning in his room at the sampler, by firing two bullets into his body with a 38 caliber revolver. The bullets entered the body near the left nipple, one glancing and lodging in the lungs and the other cutting the heart. Mr. Gray was conscious from the time of the shooting until within 15 minutes of the time he expired. Death came at 4:30 a. m. at the Sisters' hospital. There is no doubt but that Gray took his own life on account of brooding over financial trouble. Deceased was of a very happy disposition and had many friends in the camp. He was a member of the Cripple Creek club and yesterday afternoon was one of the most prominent rooters for the club at the ball game at Union park. In the evening he attended the smoker in the club rooms at the National hotel, but shortly after midnight left the club and went to the hotel clerk and secured paper and envelopes. He appeared in the best of humor and after having a drink with the clerk at the hotel bar, he went to the writing room in the hotel, and wrote four or five letters. There seems no doubt but that the man premeditated suicide. What the letters contain is not known. It is supposed that he mailed the letters in the box in front of the hotel and then left for his lodgings. Shortly after 1 o'clock Joseph Tawney, formerly bailiff of the district court met Gray and together they walked up Poverty Gulch, parting at the Midland trestle. As they parted Tawney said, "I am going up to the cabin and take the long sleep." To which Gray replied "I would like to take the long sleep." Gray went directly to his room removed his hat and coat, and shot himself. George Keener, manager of the Mary McKinney property, was asleep in an adjoining room and was awakened by the shot. He discovered Gray and at once telephoned Dr. Dunwoody and to the Cripple Creek club. The Doctor arrived within a few minutes and found that Gray had little chance for recovery. An ambulance was summoned and Gray was removed to the hospital. Night Captain of Police Williams rode in the ambulance to the hospital with Gray and was told by the dying man that he was tired of life. He also stated that he thought he would make a better job of his atempt at suicide. When he found that he was sinking he said "Well Williams, I didn't do such a bad job."

Ernest Gray came to the district about eight years ago from Aspen, where he was a partner in the livery business run under the firm name of Trowbridge & Gray. He came to Colorado 17 or 18 years ago. For some time past he has been leasing on the C. C. & M. property, and it is stated that he has not been successful in his operations here. He came to Colorado from Washington, D. C., where his parents Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Gray now reside. His father is a retired physician. Accompanied by A. W. Gillette, a Denver attorney, the body was tonight taken to Washington for burial.

The Cripple Creek baseball team, organized by J. F. Wright, easily defeated the Victor team at Union park this afternoon by a score of 20 to 1. Two hundred people witnessed the contest and for the first four innings it was a good exhibition. In the fifth inning, Wright relieved Nay in the box, and the locals pounded out 12 runs before the side was retired. Lee succeeded Wright and pitched great ball for the locals, allowing but four hits, two of them being made after he had let down in the ninth inning. These two hits and Gaffney's error allowed the visitors their only run.

A. T. Dyer was held up and robbed of $100 while walking on the Midland Terminal track above Goldfield shortly before midnight. Mr. Dyer was nearing his home when two men came out of the darkness and ordered him to throw up his hands, he complied with the request. He reported the matter to the police of this city. No arrests have been made.

MRS. MOORE'S FUNERAL.

Special to the Gazette.

Victor, June 29.—Funeral services were held this afternoon at the Presbyterian church over the body of Mrs. Clara Moore, the wife of Mr. H. G. Moore, who died early yesterday morning at the Victor hospital after a lingering illness. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. McNair and Rev. Davisson. A long funeral cortege followed the body to Sunnyside cemetery.

GEORGE STRONG IN TROUBLE YESTERDAY

Special to the Gazette.

Denver, June 29.—George Strong of Victor, brother of the late Sam Strong of Cripple Creek, died in the city jail in this city a little after noon today. He and a man by the name of John Trap were arrested yesterday morning at 9:35 at 17th and Wazee streets charged with being in a drunken condition. This morning both appeared to have "sobered up." At about 11:30 Strong was seized with a fit. The city physician was summoned, but could do nothing for him, and he died in a few moments. At the time of his death one of his relatives was in the office of Chief of Police Armstrong trying to arrange bail for him. Trap told Armstrong this afternoon that he and Strong had been drunk for 30 days. Both came here from Missouri a few days ago.

NEWS NOTES FROM DENVER

Storm Does Large Amount of Damage---A Train Load of Cattle Killed.

Denver Bureau
Colorado Springs Gazette.

Denver, June 29.—The heavy rain and hail storm which passed over Denver yesterday did more damage than was at first supposed. Growing crops and orchards were practically ruined, while gardens were damaged beyond estimation. The rain caused Cherry creek and the Platte to overflow and an immense amount of damage resulted to the persons in the bottoms. It is estimated that the damage in and around the city of Denver will amount to $250,000.

Later state reports indicate that the storm was general. In many of the mountain towns snow fell, ranging in depth from one to 12 inches. Leadville had six inches of snow and the large party of eastern tourists in the city at this time enjoyed a snowballing contest.

The police this afternoon found the body of George Myers. It was lying near his tent in the river bottoms. There was a bullet hole in the back of his head. He had been dead three or four days. The police are working on the murder theory, but have not as yet made any arrests. Myers was a horse trader, and "bached" in a small tent in the river bottom.

A meeting which will probably have a great bearing on future irrigation in the west will be held at the Chamber of Commerce building Monday. Those in attendance will be A. L. Fellows, resident hydrographer of the United States geological survey, State Engineer A. J. McClure, Professor L. G. Carpenter of the state agricultural college, and John E. Field, deputy state engineer.

The meeting will discuss means and ways of helping Chief Hydrographer T. H. Newell when he comes here to apportion the funds under the new national irrigation law.

Following is a list of the persons who were injured in the Tramway wreck near Elitchs' gardens near midnight last night:

MRS. W. F. ROGERS, 625 Twenty-fifth street, head cut, badly bruised about the body and shocked by the fall; taken to Mrs. Royes, 4001 West Thirty-fifth avenue.

MRS. S. A. PERKINS, 724 Vine street, scalp cut and torn on right side, body badly bruised; taken home.

MRS. S. TORKINGTON, 1761 Race street, scalp lacerated.

GUS BILLINGER, 3067 Gallup, scalp cut badly.

LENA M. HOUGHTON, 261 South Broadway, back and shoulders wrenched, and bruised confusion on head; taken home.

HATTIE HOUGHTON, 261 South Broadway, chest badly bruised; went home.

CELESTIA DOZIER, 260 South Broadway, head bruised. Went home.

MRS. G. E. SANER, 3072 Meade street, shocked and bruised.

MRS. F. E. WESSELL, 3230 Meade, head seriously bruised and neck wrenched badly; result probably fatal. Taken home in ambulance.

CHARLES K. VAN NORTWICK, usher, 52 South Eleventh street, scalp badly cut and arm bruised. Went to police surgeon and wound dressed.

GEORGE PENERIE, usher, Ninth and Broadway, nose broken and body bruised. Went home.

The accident occurred because of the wet rails and the motorman's inability to slow up. In trying to round a curve at West Thirty-fifth avenue and Perry street, the car left the rails and upset. The passengers were thrown in a promiscuous heap. The peculiar phase of the wreck was that the front trucks of the car did not leave the rails. They rounded the curve, but the force of the speed caused the front end of the car to be wrenched off the trucks.

ARRESTS FOR VIOLATIONS OF GAME LAWS

Special to the Gazette.

Glenwood Springs, June 29.—Game Warden Frabert arrived in Glenwood tonight with four prisoners arrested for violation of the game and fish laws. "Old Man Stevenson" and his son from Yampah had 50 pounds of trout when arrested. Charles Cheney and Bob Layton were at another part of the lake taking fish out by hand as the fish are now fawning and easily caught. Mr. Frabert had a hard trip and came down with his prisoners through a severe snowstorm. They will be tried tomorrow in the county court. The fish will be sold for the benefit of the state game and fish fund.

F. M. ENGLISH KILLED IN WRECK AT DIVIDE STATION

was the first of the injured to get free. He stopped the flow of blood from a nasty scalp wound in his head and just then the little O'Rourke girl was taken out.

Dr. Packard's presence and prompt action are responsible for saving Mary O'Rourke's life, as the blood was pouring from the ragged wound in her arm and she was fast bleeding to death. He caught up and tied the severed arteries and stopped the hemorrhage in the nick of time.

The doctor sprang from one injured person to another, and was a veritable messenger of mercy to those who were suffering. One of the train crew discovered another physician's satchel in the baggage car, it being consigned to a physician in Denver. He took the satchel to Dr. Packard, and as the key was attached the doctor opened it and replenished his stock of bandages.

Dr. Wills of Greeley got on the train at Green Mountain Falls, but did not have his case with him. He did what he could to assist the young physician, and the two doctors had all the injured cared for as far as possible under the circumstances before the special bearing the other physicians arrived on the scene.

J. Shiray of Cripple Creek was a passenger on the train. He was in the smoking car, which was the first car of the train. He describes his experience as follows:

"I was sitting in the smoker not thinking of any accident or anything of that kind, when suddenly the car made a jerk and then we were going over. The car turned over three times and we were all thrown about, and I expected to be killed every minute. The car stopped about 40 feet from the track and then I found that I was not badly hurt. I feel the effects of being bumped about."

L. E. McGarry of Goldfield was also in the smoker. He tells the following story:

"I had just bought a copy of the Gazette and had started to read it. When the first jar came I noticed it slightly, but was too much engrossed in my reading to realize it. As soon as the next jolt came I knew there was something wrong and I jumped out into the aisle and caught hold of a seat. Then we started to go over, and we were all piled up. When the car stopped rolling there were two or three on top of me and I was on top of some others. I crawled out of a window and found that I was bleeding badly. Just then the doctor came along and fixed me up. I considered myself lucky, as practically I was thrown out of a window into the arms of a doctor."

H. D. Thompson and L. G. Campbell, both of Cripple Creek, were in the second car, in which most of the injured were seated, but escaped uninjured. They describe the accident about as the others did, but tell an interesting story of the after-scene.

"As soon as we got out," said Mr. Thompson, "we set to work to help those that had been caught. We had to pull Mrs. Van der Weyden out from under the trucks, and we had to cut the little O'Rourke girl out from under the car. That man Greene showed the greatest nerve I ever saw. He was pulled out with a broken leg, and we had scarcely seated him on the ground when he pulled out a sack of tobacco and a cigarette paper and started to roll a cigarette, calling out: 'All right, boys; I've been there before.' When he was taken off the train here and was being put into a carriage, he called out: 'You've got me this far; I'll get in myself,' and he jumped in, despite his broken leg."

The Second Special.

About 2 o'clock the second special came down from the scene of the wreck and in the baggage car of this train was the dead body of Francis M. English, the only man killed. Officials of the Midland road had notified friends of the late Mr. English of that fact that he had been killed, and Rev. Arthur N. Taft, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, went to the depot to identify the body, at the request of the Midland men.

Coroner David T. Law had been notified and was at the depot with a casket and as soon as the train drew into the station he and its assistants transferred the body to the casket and moved it to Fairley's undertaking parlors. A crowd of the morbidly curious attempted to get a glimpse of the body but the car door was closed while the body was being placed in the casket and the cover was on when the casket was borne to the undertaking morgue.

At the morgue a few friends were permitted to see the remains, and they will never forget the sight. All the injuries are about the face and head and the countenance was crushed almost beyond recognition. The jaw was broken and a big gash was in the back of the skull.

Mrs. English, who had remained at Woodland Park, was notified and came down on the 2:46 Midland train. She was met at the depot by friends and was taken to her Colorado Springs home. She was not allowed to see the remains of her late husband. She was deeply grief stricken by the news which had been kept [illegible] utes for the organist, Mr. W. F. Crosby was asked to play. He found the organ locked and Mr. English had the key, so he was compelled to break it open.

It was not until after church was over that Mr. Taft received word that Mr. English had been killed. When the body was found in the wreck, the music for today's services at the church was found by its side. It was sent down here with the body and was placed on top of the body in the coffin.

When it became known who the dead man was, there was general regret throughout the city, for the late Mr. English was well known and well liked.

Mr. English was born in England 54 years ago. He has been a musician from his early youth. As a youth he studied music in Belgium and France and earned the title of bachelor of music. Later he attended St. John's college, Oxford, from which he took the degree of A. B. with honors.

After graduating from Oxford he went to Honolulu where he lived several years and for a time was private secretary to Queen [illegible]ukalani. It was in Honolulu that Mr. English met his wife and married her. He has resided in several parts of this country, his home being in San Francisco for some time. From there he moved to Denver from whence he directed some mining properties in which he was interested. These turned out unfortunately and two years ago Mr. English moved to Colorado Springs where he took up his profession and began his career as organist of the First Baptist church. Later he took charge of St. Stephen's organ and choir and was filling this position at the time of his death. His musical work in this city has been crowned with success and he has risen rapidly to a leading position. As an organist he had a touch and power of expression that belong to few and as a director he had few superiors.

Mr. English possessed other traits that made him popular. As an entertainer he was unexcelled, having a rare knack of story telling. He was a classical scholar of more than ordinary rank and was a pupil and disciple of Ruskin.

He was a writer, too, and contributed several articles to "Facts" on the subject of art and his papers were always of a high intellectual character.

Among those who will mourn him most are the cricketers of Colorado. In the days of his prosperity this game had no heartier supporter in the state. His money and his time were always at the disposal of the Denver Cricket club, of which he was president. In Chicago, Omaha, Minneapolis and Winnipeg, cricketers will hear of his death with sorrow. He was also a member of the Colorado bar.

Few men were more versatile. During his short stay here he has lent his talent to many worthy enterprises. In addition to the churches named, the Glockner sanitarium and the Colorado Springs Musical club will feel that they have lost one to whom they owed a debt in that his talents have always been at their disposal, while Trinity Methodist Episcopal church of Denver will hold him in kindly remembrance.

He was a member of the University club of Denver and many there will look back with pleasure to his genial hospitality.

His career in the United States extended from St. Augustine, Fla., to Honolulu and everywhere he went the musical, artistic and literary circles were his debtors. The cathedral at Honolulu owes to him its musical excellence, as is testified by the Episcopal bishop of that diocese.

Composer, writer, musician, lawyer, miner, manufacturer, scholar, instructor, connoisseur and linguist—there are few men who possess the attainments of him whose death is mourned throughout the city.

Mr. English leaves a widow to whom he has many friends extend their heartiest sympathy. Mrs. English returned to Wood and Park last night. She has many friends both here and there.

The funeral has been arranged for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. It will be held from St. Stephen's church. St. Stephen's choir is asked to meet at 9:30 in the vestry of the church to rehearse music for the funeral of their late director.

INQUEST TODAY.

Coroner Law has decided to hold an inquest over the remains of Francis M. English to determine who was responsible for his death. The inquest will be held at about 2 o'clock this afternoon.

PROBLEMS DISCUSSED AT SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Special to the Gazette.

Denver, June 29.—No morning session of the International Sunday School association was held, the delegates spending their time in visiting the churches and Sunday schools of the city. The afternoon session opened at Trinity Methodist church at 4:30 with W. J. Semelroth of St. Louis, Mo., presiding, and with a praise and prayer service led by Dr. Worden of Philadelphia. Perhaps the most interesting feature of this section was the reading of reports of the progress of Sunday school work in Japan, London and India. The report of the work in Japan, read by Dr. Phillips of Virginia, showed that Sunday schools are everywhere to be found there, associations have been formed and a summer school is to be held regularly in July for the training of teachers. Institutes are held, leaflets and books published. No delegates to the convention were sent from Japan this year, but it will probably be represented in the next.

The Hon. F. F. Belsey who is a very forcible speaker, was listened to with rapt attention in his report of the London Sunday School union. The report of the work in India showed that by 1900, 8,000 Sunday schools had been established with an attendance of 330,000 pupils.

The latter part of the session was devoted to a discussion of the question, "Is Jerusalem the Place for the World's Fourth Convention?" by E. K. Warren of Three Oaks, Mich. The speaker presented the difficulty of holding a Sunday school convention in Jerusalem first of which was the fact that each person attending must pay his own expenses. Mr. Warren said that all people would know immediately that they were not in Denver. Further difficulties were that there are no public buildings large enough to hold such a convention, no daily papers, no conveyances, no electric lights or street lamps.

He then discussed the advantages of holding the convention in such a place. He seemed to think that a visit to the holy land would promote faith in the bible in the visiting delegates, and arouse a larger interest in the world's Sunday school work. It would bring increased value to missionary work and give vast information to home people on return of the delegates. He also said that it would be a splendid opportunity for busy husbands and brothers to become acquainted with their wives, as a few months would necessarily be spent in the journey. The cost of the trip is undoubtedly the greatest difficulty in the way, as it would be from $500 to $750.

A very enthusiastic Sunday school superintendents' rally and open air parliament conducted by Mr. Marion Lawrence of Toledo, Ohio, who is general secretary of the International Sunday school convention was held this afternoon at the First Baptist church. About 350 superintendents were in session. Previous to the meeting of this convention letters had been sent to over 200 prominent superintendents in the United States and Canada asking that they suggest topics for discussion. Replies were received from many, and 50 questions were tabulated and presented for consideration, those which were considered of paramount importance were selected and discussed. The speeches were necessarily brief, being limited from one to two minutes, but great interest was shown by the participants and many helpful suggestions were made. They were:

1. How shall we stop the leaks?
2. How shall we secure faithful and efficient teachers?
3. What is the best way to introduce normal work?
4. How shall we secure punctuality of teachers and scholars?
5. How can the superintendent best employ his week days to the profit of his school?

Tomorrow the closing session of the convention will be held and the questions left over, such as "Is Jerusalem the Place for the World's Fourth Convention?" whether a graded system of lessons shall be adopted or not, and the several resolutions which are in the hands of the resolution committee, will be decided.

LEADVILLE

(Special Correspondence.)

Leadville, June 28.—Two months have made a wonderful change in Fryer hill. There was not a single enterprise working east of the Dunkin property, the whole of the basin, it was believed, being hopelessly drowned. Now the conditions are decidedly different. Two railroad grading outfits are at work running spurs to the various shafts and the company will soon be in a position to ship ore. The El Paso's plant is now in first-class working order and pumping out 1,200 gallons of water per minute. The Tip-Top has been placed in good repair, the shaft retimbered and the water is now out of the upper level. There is considerable ore in the upper levels, and when the railroad spur is completed shipments will commence. The Jamie Lee is also making some improvements and will be ready in a short time. The Silver will also be operated by a separate plant, as well as the Dunkin, but the Forepaugh, Olive Branch, Bangkok-Cora Belle and other properties will be worked through the drifts run in from the El Paso.

J. W. Maxwell, manager of the El Paso, has shown excellent judgment in equipping the shaft with a first-class plant of machinery. The pumps in use at the present time will be used until the bottom is reached at 580 feet, when a Knowles compound will be installed, capable of throwing 1,200 gallons 600 feet direct to the surface, which will be the means of saving $1,800 per month in the pumping bill. The four boilers which are now in use are not up to their maximum capacity, as this is not necessary at present. Twenty men are now employed on the surface and this force will be increased as fast as required.

There are now at least twelve men leasing on the Lillian mine and occasional shipments are being made. One of the set of leasers encountered a vein of the old-fashioned Lillian ore in a drift to the north not long ago. It ran two and one-half ounces of gold, five per cent lead and 40 per cent silver, and a few tons have already been saved. The new vein is headed for Virginia ground to the north and the strike may lead to a valuable discovery.

The Governor claim of the Little Corinne will be operated this season for the first time in many years. The Corinne vein is undoubtedly one of the richest ever discovered on Mosquito range, with the exception of the London.

The Corinne company took out $240,000 when the ore dipped away and they ceased operations. Mr. Sullivan, one of the present owners, has moved [illegible] quantity of supplies and intends opening one of the tunnels. It has been opened 160 feet, but the ore dipped away. At present the tunnel is partially filled with ice and it will require some time to clean it out.

The vein carries gold almost exclusively and shows all kinds of rich assays.

At present there is a very heavy demand for commercial grades of zinc in the camp, due to the utilization of the metal both in the manufacture of zinc paint and spelter. For the latter purpose all the zinc concentrates are being shipped and the increase in the milling capacity of the various plants is every evidence that the zinc smelters want all they can get of the right grade of material.

Manager Gray of the United States Reduction and Refining company's plant of Canon City is now in the city arranging for a supply of ore from this point. The ore required for this purpose is a zinc-lead sulphide.

The announcement that the Reduction company is about to erect another zinc plant either at Canon City, Pueblo or Colorado City is an important piece of information for Leadville. Since obtaining control of the Canon City plant numerous improvements have been made. It is evident that the United States company has enlarged the market for its white paint, which can be produced much more cheaply than the white lead, and the fact that a new plant is to be built means that Leadville will be called upon for more ore.

THOUSANDS OF ESTIMATES FILED DURING CONTEST OF NEW SUBSCRIBERS—PRIZE WINNERS WILL BE ANNOUNCED NEXT WEDNESDAY.

Last evening the figure puzzle ended and the last of the estimates is now in.

All day long the people filed into the office with their guesses and told what they thought of the numbers.

The contest has been the most successful of its kind ever carried on within the city, and has resulted in the adding of hundreds of names to the subscription lists of the Gazette, as well as awarded a great deal of amusement for a great many people and brought handsome cash prizes to some and prizes of lesser value to a great many more.

The prize winners in the figure contest will be determined as early as possible, and full announcement of the winners will be made on Wednesday morning.

Doctors Studying the Springs Climate

Fifteen physicians who are members of the American Climatological association have arrived at the Antlers en route from the recent convention held in Los Angeles. Prominent members of the local medical fraternity met the eminent doctors of the east and in the evening a delightful smoker was given the visitors by the management of the hotel in the sun parlor, during which appropriate refreshments were served.

This morning the doctors will be taken by the local members of the Climatological association on a drive to Cragmor, across the mesa and about the points of interest around Manitou. At noon the visitors will be the guests of the El Paso County Medical society at a luncheon to be given at the Antlers. In the afternoon Broadmoor will be visited. It is the intention of most of the physicians to leave for Denver in the evening, but a few of them will remain in the city for several days longer, studying the climate. The visiting physicians are: Dr. Vincent Y. Bowditch, head of Massachusetts sanitarium; Dr. Bailey, Dr. W. F. Phillips of Washington, D. C.; Mr. Charles E. Namack, Dr. D. C. Romaine, Dr. Edward O. Otis of Boston, a well known tuberculosis specialist; Dr. and Mrs. Horace Arnold of Boston, Dr. Arnold being a member of the faculty of Tuft's Medical college; Dr. J. Warren White, also of Tuft's college; Dr. A. C. Getchell, a trustee of the Massachusetts sanitarium; Dr. John M. Heffron, of the University of Syracuse and his friend, Judge Cheney, also of Syracuse; Dr. Richard A. Cleeman and Dr. William E. Parke of Philadelphia.

Local doctors who are members of the association are Drs. Anderson, Gardiner, Hoagland, Hart, Solly, Swan and Campbell. The last five mentioned attended the convention in California.

PRESENTATION TO MR. EDWARD F. McKAY

A number of the newspaper men of the city presented Mr. Edward F. McKay with a handsome picture during the lunch hour last night.

The presentation was made at the McRae cafe, where the fellow newspaper men of Mr. McKay met by prearrangement. Mr. Lewis Tallaferro, of the Evening Telegraph, presented the picture in a few words in behalf of the Pike's Peak Press club. The picture was given as an expression of the appreciation of the members of the press club of Mr. McKay's work for the club during the recent editorial convention in this city. The presentation was a complete surprise and the recipient was too much affected to find words to respond. The picture was one of Astra's famous head studies.

[illegible] ASSAULTED

A rumor was circulated on the streets last night to the effect that Officer Burch, who disappeared last Thursday night, had shot himself in Cripple Creek. Every effort was made to get confirmation or a denial of the rumor, but the Cripple Creek police know nothing about it.

[illegible] CONGRESS

have made no difference; the country was under a reign of terror.

"Then you wanted a man who could organize the natives?"

"No, I did not want anyone. Aguinaldo and his people were forced upon me by Consul Pratt and others."

"Did the consul and others have any power to force these people upon you?"

"Yes, by constant pressure. I did not want the Filipino refugees, because I did not believe that a half dozen of them would do any good, in view of the report that thousands would rise up in insurrection upon our arrival at Manila. I thought they would play a very small part."

"Then you placed the country at the mercy of a man who would plunder and rob, notwithstanding you had no need of his services?"

This question the admiral declined to answer, and Senator Patterson took the witness, asking if Aguinaldo had ever talked to him on the basis of selling out to the Americans. The admiral replied in the negative and Mr. Patterson then asked if the Philippine leader had ever asked him for money. The reply was that Aguinaldo had asked him to exchange gold for Mexican dollars.

"I was pretty sure as to where he had gotten the dollars, as he had not brought them with him," said the admiral, "and I thought that the fact that he wanted gold was pretty good indication that he was getting ready to leave.

"That was what made me think that the man was feathering his own nest, but it was only a suspicion."

Here the admiral again referred to Aguinaldo's style at Malolos, and Senator Patterson asked if that style had not served the purpose of inspiring the admiration of his followers and holding their allegiance. To this inquiry the witness replied that the style was "probably more inspiring to them than to those from whom the property had been taken."

"Do you think that is proper testimony?" asked Mr. Patterson, and Chairman Beveridge interfered with a strong protest against innuendoes against Admiral Dewey. He considered the question as discourteous.

Mr. Patterson, however, disclaimed any intention to be otherwise than respectful, and he continued his questions.

"Do you know," he asked, "whether Aguinaldo has a dollar today?"

"I don't know," was the reply. "I have not been in the Philippines for three years; how should I know?"

"Do you not know from your experience that there was never a day while he was in arms that he could not have made himself rich at the expense of the American government if he had given up?"

The witness hesitated and said he could not answer the question. He was told by the chair that he need not do so.

"You do know," Mr. Patterson went on, "that there were several who got good fat offices?"

The reply was in the negative.

The witness also said he knew nothing of the payment of money to the Cuban general, Gomez, and he added the suggestion to Senator Patterson that he should not put such questions to him.

Senator Patterson also asked a number of questions concerning Admiral Dewey's association with General Anderson of his arrival, and his visit to Aguinaldo in company with the general. He said he had suggested to General Anderson on the occasion of that visit that he need not wear his uniform or put on his sword, but that his blouse would be sufficient, and that the suggestion had been adopted. Referring to a report of that interview made by General Anderson and to copies of letters written by the general, in which Aguinaldo was assured of a desire for amicable relations, Admiral Dewey said that he did not remember that any such assurance had been given. Speaking of General Anderson's letters to the Philippine chieftain, the witness said:

"When I heard that he was writing letters to Aguinaldo I advised him against doing so."

He added that he was not conversant with all of General Anderson's acts before the arrival of General Merritt, as the general had gone his way, while he (Dewey) had gone his. He also said General Anderson had offended Aguinaldo on the occasion of their visit by his questions.

When Senator Patterson pressed other questions calling for reference to statements made by army officers and others, the admiral declined to answer, saying:

"I am here to testify to what I know, and I will give all the information I can in that way, but I am not responsible for what others have said. I don't like your questions, and I don't think I ought to be required to reply to them."

The chair assured the witness that he need not answer. The admiral said, however, in reply to further pressing, that his views did not coincide with those expressed by General Anderson in a magazine article. "They don't coincide," he said. "We differed very much from the beginning."

Senators Beveridge and Dietrich then asked a few questions. The former reminded the admiral of a visit that he (Senator Beveridge) had paid the admiral on the flagship Olympia when she lay in the harbor at Manila, and asked him if he remembered a conversation that he said had occurred between them, while they were looking out from the deck, the admiral having said, referring to the success of the American arms, that "he could not help thinking that it was all due to a higher power than ours."

"I do," replied the admiral. "I remember that I said that, and it is my opinion now."

Senator Beveridge read extracts from the reports of the first Philippine commission, of which Admiral Dewey was a member, in which the statement was made that the Filipinos were incapable of standing alone, and if the American support was withdrawn they would lapse into anarchy, and asked him if that had been his opinion. He replied in the affirmative, adding that he still entertained that view.

Senator Carmack—Was that always your opinion?

Admiral Dewey—Yes. True, I made a comparison once with the Cubans, saying the Filipinos were more capable of self-government than the Cubans. I think neither the Filipinos nor the Cubans are capable of self-government."

Senator Dietrich's questions were intended to show the state of Admiral Dewey's mind concerning the Filipinos at the time of the engagement with the Spanish squadron. He asked the admiral if it was not true if he had recognized the Filipinos as allies, trusted them as such, and considered them capable of taking charge of Manila, he would have accepted the proffer for the surrender of Manila before the arrival of the American troops.

"Yes," replied the witness, "that is true, and it is a good idea. I had not thought of it, and I am glad you suggested it. It makes my testimony stronger. It was true, and the fact that I did not accept the surrender and put them in charge shows that I did not trust them. It never entered my head to do that."

With this Admiral Dewey was discharged as a witness, and he expressed himself as much gratified to secure his release.

Denver, June 28.—A special to the Republican from Greeley, Colo., says that section was visited today by a cloudburst which did a great amount of damage to crops. Six hundred spring lambs on the ranch of Gill & Becker, seven miles northeast of Greeley, were driven by the storm into an irrigating canal and drowned.

[illegible] EVIDENTLY COMPROMISED

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Washington, June 28.—Acting Secretary of State Hill received a message today from United States Minister Powell, at Port au Prince, stating that he had been informed of the intention of the Haytien admiral to bombard Cape Haytien at 2 o'clock. A message from Minister Powell received at the cabinet just one minute later informed Mr. Hill that the Haytien government had disavowed the intention of the admiral. So complicated are the affairs in Hayti that the officials here are at loss to know the import of the two cablegrams. The state department was informed some weeks ago that the new provisional government had been formally recognized by the diplomatic corps of Port au Prince, but whether the admiral is a follower of Jiminez or Firman or represents the provisional government itself is not known in official circles.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 28.—Great excitement has prevailed here since yesterday. Admiral Killick, commander of the Haytien fleet, disembarked troops to support General Firman, former Haytien minister at Paris and one of the candidates for the presidency, of the republic and after refusing to recognize the constituted authorities, threatened to bombard Cape Haytien. The consular corps today protested against such action being taken. The bishop and a delegation of the foreign consuls endeavored to bring about harmony between the contending factions, but their efforts failed of success. Since 5 o'clock this afternoon fighting has been in progress in the streets and the firing continues. The situation is extremely grave and everything is to be feared.

Louisville, Ky., June 28.—The Courier-Journal tomorrow will say:

Plans for the increasing of the circuit of the National Baseball league to 12 clubs are under way, and it is stated on good authority that Louisville will be one of the clubs in the circuit.

If the National league carries out its plans it will be a fight to a finish between the big organization and George Tebeau, who at present owns the American association team in this city and who has been very successful.

STORM IN CHICAGO.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Chicago, June 28.—For 24 hours Chicago has been in the grasp of one of the heaviest storms of the year. The rain has fallen unceasingly, and the wind has blown a gale off Lake Michigan, the force of the blow rising at times to 40 miles an hour. Much damage has been done to truck farms near the city and the continued wet has caused heavy loss to florists, many of whom will be compelled to plant their flowers over again. The flower beds in the majority of the parks have been ruined. It is reported, according to the weather bureau, that severe weather will continue for at least 36 hours more.

SOME MEN WHO SHOULD BE ENCOURAGED.

COLORADO SPRINGS has become the acknowledged center of the gold mining interests of the country.

This is but natural since this city is the home of the men who have made and now are the owners of the greatest mines in the greatest gold camp in the greatest gold-producing state in the country. The Colorado Springs Mining Stock association is the board on which the transactions in the stocks of these companies take place, and this city is known the financial world over as the home of the owners of the Cripple Creek mines and of the vast interests that have been built up more or less dependent upon and allied with their operation.

It should be a matter of considerable pride to the people of Colorado Springs and vicinity, therefore, that this city is the home of the men who have spent the last ten years and the money they had ten years ago and all they have been able to get hold of during this period of time perfecting what have become the most successful methods yet discovered for the treatment of the Cripple Creek ores—for making profitable the work of hundreds of others whose money would have been spent fruitlessly had this method of reduction of the ores of Cripple Creek not been applied, constantly improved and constantly made less and less costly to the miner.

Messrs. Charles L. Tutt, Spencer Penrose and Charles M. MacNeill, the principal officers of the United States Reduction and Refining company, are citizens of Colorado Springs of whom the city has abundant reason to be proud. They have plunged into the work of making the mining of gold in Cripple Creek profitable, and their efforts and expenditure of money have made it possible for dozens of mines in the district that have never reached bonanza proportions to operate at a profit, whereas had the treatment of the product of these mines had to go to some of the other reduction plants the return would not have been sufficient to justify working the properties.

Messrs. Tutt, Penrose and MacNeill, through the several companies which they have established and the numerous reduction plants that they have acquired, either to stop an unprofitable and disastrous expenditure of money on the part of someone else or to make a success where others have failed, have proved their ability to carry out the plans that they make.

Colorado Springs needs no other evidence than their record in the past to warrant the people of this city and vicinity in doing everything they may be asked to do to aid and encourage and co-operate with these business men in the future.

As the readers of the Gazette know, the United States Reduction and Refining company will, at an early date, erect an entirely new smelting plant, to be located at the place that seems to the men back of the company to be the most advantageous. Colorado City has every natural advantage for the location of this plant, and with the aid of Colorado Springs, whose interests in all business matters are identical with her own, must secure this plant.

Through the reduction plants that the United States company now owns and operates in Colorado City, regardless of its extensive interests elsewhere, there is being distributed at the present time no less than $30,000 per month.

The erection and operation of another big labor-employing institution in the vicinity of Colorado Springs, the success of which is thoroughly warranted which could not be said with positive assurance were unknown parties at the head of it, means too much to Colorado Springs and Colorado City and the entire community to allow anything that might be an inducement for it to come here to be overlooked.

Messrs. Tutt, Penrose and MacNeill should be given the hand of encouragement and co-operation by each and every business man interested in the welfare of Colorado Springs and its vicinity.

THE BUSINESS MEN'S PROGRESSIVE CLUB.

THE pledges to become members of the Business Men's Progressive club have been numerously signed by the leading people of Colorado Springs, and at the first regular meeting to be held at the chamber of commerce Wednesday night there will be a large attendance.

The people of Colorado Springs are always alive to every opportunity to make this a larger, a more attractive and a more complete business and resort city, and they have the indomitable spirit which overcomes all difficulties, and which removes all obstacles.

The movement for better roads, the movement for more sanitariums, the movement for more factories, the movement for more wholesale houses, the movement to make this a complete, finished and artistic city are all worthy the united efforts of all residents of Colorado Springs.

Every person who has signed the roll of membership and every other person who wishes to enlist in the good work should attend the meeting at the chamber of commerce Wednesday night. Public work is healthful work. It makes you forget yourself in the larger thought of doing good.

This generation of our citizens can leave many monuments to perpetuate their memories by devoted and united work for the future of the city.

Every public-spirited citizen, whatever his occupation may be, should attend the meeting Wednesday night.

HANDSHAKING MUST STOP.

THE Gazette joined with many other papers last fall after the assassination of the president in declaring that the old-fashioned handshaking with the chief executive of the nation should be stopped when he is traveling. It pointed out that President Roosevelt would be the very one to inaugurate such a system, because no one could accuse him of snobbishness or fear. It is now announced that next fall the president is to take a western trip, and Secretary Cortelyou has written the Chicago committee that there will be no general handshaking while in that city.

Sensible persons will approve this decision, although it has been a prerogative of the people for a long time past to enjoy themselves in trying to pull the good right hand of the president out of its socket whenever he appears among them. It is natural that the people should want to see the president, and most presidents have liked to come in contact with the people. Mr. Roosevelt is able to stand more pulling and hauling than most men who have occupied the chair, but that is no reason why he or any other should have to submit to the pain of hours and hours of handshaking.

The lecture and stereopticon entertainment which Secretary McClurg of the chamber of commerce gives at the Opera house this evening is worthy of a large patronage. The subject of the lecture is "Pass, Peak and Plain." It tells of the Pike's Peak region in which we are living. Two hundred views are shown by means of a stereopticon. Mr. McClurg prepared the lecture for use away from home as a pleasing means of attracting attention to this region. At the request of the chamber of commerce he is giving the lecture here that the home people may see, hear and appreciate it. There is no one better prepared to arrange and deliver such a lecture, and those who attend are sure to be delighted. The lecture was given in California last month and the press comments were quite enthusiastic in their praise of it. Mr. Casser's orchestra from the Antlers will be present and render a delightful programme during the evening. The lecture is for the benefit of the chamber of commerce.

The champion newspaper fakir lives in Wichita, Kas., or else the slavery question was fought out on the bleeding, bloody soil for nothing. A dispatch claims that the farmers have captured a lot of tramps and are holding them in a sort of bondage while forcing them to work in the harvest fields. The women are employed with shotguns to guard the prisoners. One might not blame the farmers for trying it, if they found a gang of lazy tramps passing through the country, refusing to work, while the crops are going to waste for lack of laborers, but one would have to question their judgment. All the work one would get out of that sort of a laborer would not pay the women for guarding them.

Editor Bryan of the Commoner, Editor Watterson of the Courier-Journal and Editor Howell of the Atlanta Constitution all roasted ex-President Cleveland in the same week. It must have seemed just like old times and nearly as good as being president again.

Maryland people are going to have a genuine Fourth of July holiday this year. The Fourth comes on Friday, and the governor has issued a proclamation making Saturday a legal holiday also. The people will have three days in which to enjoy themselves, and we are able to really blow a gun.

What Colorado Editors Are Saying

ANOTHER COMPLIMENT.

Colorado Springs is the convention town of the state. They started off with the State Editorial association and they have been coming three and four a week ever since. The editors were treated so royally they have taken a vote that the town shall have 50,000 inhabitants as soon as possible. Colorado Springs has the brightest future of any town in this state.—(Glenwood Avalanche.

Many Colorado people who have never visited Colorado Springs are of the opinion that its people are of the cold aristocratic class, who have no use for strangers except to fleece them for rooms and board. That they are mistaken in this estimate was amply demonstrated last week by the superb manner in which the members of the Arkansas Valley and Colorado Editorial associations were entertained while holding their midsummer meeting. The editors were given trolley rides to Cheyenne cañon and Broadmoor Monday evening and on Tuesday enjoyed one of the grandest scenic trips in the world, a trip over the Colorado Springs and Cripple Creek Short Line taking them to the great gold camp, where they were given a luncheon by the Cripple Creek Press club.

The attendance at this meeting was the greatest in years and among the many good things were addresses by ex-Governor Alva Adams, Frank Goudy and L. B. France, a story by Ellis Meredith, a "chalk talk" by one of the Post cartoonists, and a talk on home made illustrations for the country newspaper, by O. C. Skinner of the Montrose Enterprise. H. J. Holmes of the Glenwood Avalanche told what work the state association was doing and Howard Russell gave a short talk on the benefit of the county organizations.

A great many new members were admitted and the treasurer's report showed an improvement in the financial condition of the association.

The members of the Pike's Peak Press club were untiring in their efforts to render the meeting a success and demonstrated to the satisfaction of all the people of this great tourist resort that they know just how to make the stranger feel that he would like to stay a day or two longer and come back next year for a month instead of two days.—(Ft. Collins Express.

The meeting of the Editorial association at Colorado Springs will long be remembered by the editors and representatives of the country papers who were present. For boundless hospitality Colorado Spring certainly takes the whole bakery and our thanks are especially tendered to the staff of the Gazette for their attentions and whole-souled kindnesses. Besides the generous entertainment the convention was replete with instruction. The papers and addresses were well received, especially that of Goudy on "The Coward in Politics." To Editor J. N. Stevens of the Gazette is due the credit of having done more than anyone else in bringing the Editorial association up to its present pitch of excellence. He alone of all the editors of the great dailies of the state, has recognized the power and usefulness of the country newspaper and has shown that the recognition came from the heart by encouraging country editors in their almost thankless work of trying to benefit the communities in which they live. It is a source of gratification to all country editors to feel that among the hosts of the "thunderers" there beats one warm heart throbbing with sympathy for them, and one strong voice which is continually uttering words of cheer to encourage them on to renewed efforts for good in the weekly grind.—(Carbondale Item.

The editor of the Statesman exceedingly regretted business engagements prevented his attending the state meeting of editors at Colorado Springs the first part of the week. They had a fine time, and much credit is due Bro. Stevens of the Gazette for the success of the occasion.—(Pueblo Western Statesman.

Editorial session at Colorado Springs was a very successful event, and was pulled off without any of the members doing anything they were sorry for or accomplished anything of particular value. It was a good time for good people in a good city, and the vacation will have an exhilarating effect on editorial columns for several weeks to come. —(San Miguel Examiner.

The Colorado Editorial association met last Monday and Tuesday in midsummer meeting at Colorado Springs, transacted a little business and engaged in recreation and amusement to a very large extent. Substantially all the business done was despatched Monday morning between 10 and 12 o'clock. Immediately after the adjournment and before lunch the editors and their wives, such as had wives and were able to bring them along, responded to the invitations of the editor of the Gazette and visited that office, where they were saturated with punch of a most delicious distillation and shown the office where Editor Stevens, and his able assistant, Editor Wilder, "stir off" the intellectual matter, original and selected, that makes the Gazette the ablest and most popular Republican daily in Colorado. (We are able to make this statement without pain or envy, because the Mail is only a weekly.)—(Pueblo Saturday Mail.

Colorado Springs has started her 50,000 population club. We believe it would be a good thing to include every editor who attended the summer meeting in that club for everyone of them is now an earnest worker for Colorado Springs and her ambition.—(Glenwood Avalanche.

The publisher of the Democrat attended the meeting of the Colorado Editorial association at Colorado Springs Monday and Tuesday. The session was attended by nearly one hundred newspaper men from all parts of the state and was the most enthusiastic and profitable midsummer session ever held.

The manner in which the country members of the fraternity were welcomed and entertained by the people of that thriving city and its splendid press club will long be lovingly remembered by many of the boys, the hospitality of the Gazette, and the entertainment afforded at Broadmoor and at the Antlers deserving especial mention.

The crowning feature of all, though was the trip to Cripple Creek over the Colorado Springs & Cripple Creek District Short Line as the guests of the Springs Press club. This trip revealed the glory of the Rockies in a manner never to be forgotten and also impressed upon the newspaper men the fact that the Short Line is the greatest standard gauge mountain railroad in the world. The entertainment at Cripple Creek was just as complete and elaborate as at Colorado Springs. It included a splendid luncheon at the National hotel and delightful rides over the steam and trolley lines to Victor and all parts of the district.

Our only regret was that we couldn't stay longer [illegible] on earth."—(Durango Democrat.

THE STATE OUTLOOK.

Matters political are in a decidedly chaotic condition among the antis and many of the leaders are already very apprehensive as to the result of next fall's contest. The populist party which recently went into political bankruptcy, is just at present trying to infuse enough life and strength into itself to make an assignment to the Socialists, to the end that the same old statesmen who have run the populist scow upon a snag may each take a block of stock in the new organization, and thus perpetuate themselves as leaders and directors. That the new fad now sailing under the name of socialism will find numerous followers there can be little doubt. Its platform will contain and its organizers will set out in bold relief a certain number of fads which no matter how meaningless or inconsistent will always find in every community a certain element of followers. Socialism was for years wedded to populism, whose name she bore, but she has recently sued for a divorce from the decrepit old thing, asking permission to assume her maiden name. The Democrats realize that the new party will, to a large extent, reduce the voting strength of their party, which had really absorbed the populist party which now, encouraged and strengthened by its new name, has taken upon itself form and shape and refuses longer to be absorbed for the small mess of political pottage heretofore doled out. Thus while the two elements which have heretofore operated with more or less harmony, bid fair to travel in opposite directions, the Republican party the party of the people, the party that does things, will nominate a good, safe and reliable ticket and no doubt elect it, leaving the perpetual knockers to wonder how it happened.—(Glenwood Post.

The comments of the Journal on the candidacy of Frank Goudy in a recent issue seems to have struck a popular chord throughout the state, as a great majority of the exchanges reaching us reprint the article with hearty endorsements. His nomination and election will do much towards re-establishing Colorado in the confidence and esteem of investors and business men throughout the country generally, and this esteem and confidence is vitally essential to the development and prosperity of the new and undeveloped states of the west.—(Telluride Journal.

WOLCOTT'S SLIDE.

All efforts of the Republican organization to keep ex-Senator Wolcott in hiding will fail to obscure the fact that the issue is now as heretofore Wolcottism and anti-Wolcottism. State elections may go this way or that in Colorado, but the people of this state are not yet prepared to elect a legislature which will be controlled by either or both Wolcott and Stevenson, on which would choose the former United States senator to succeed faithful and able old Senator Henry M. Teller.—(Daily Camera.

ALL PROSPEROUS ALONG.

Forward.

Durango is going forward—not will go; not is preparing to go, but is going. And this is true notwithstanding she has her tax league, her newspapers, her wars and rumors of wars. Not all have lost sight of the splendid opportunities that are here, for investment and quite a number are "sawing wood" while the elements are muttering and the disgruntled are growling and snapping.

The gas plant is going forward; the cold storage plant is getting in its work; the stone saw mill is ripping out its building material; the lumber makers are felling the forests, and the soap factory is making soap. More—more—the mountains round about are giving up their treasures in marvelous abundance. Many are predicting that the La Platas will soon rival Cripple Creek in the production of gold, and that the Neglected will be the marvel of the world in richness and abundance of its product. We are going forward, so shut up and go to work pushing instead of pulling back. Get into the ranks of progress or take up the measured step of tramp, tramp, tramp, or you will get left way back in the rear with the "riff raff."—(Durango Republican.

Durango and the Southwest.

It is gratifying to note the attention this part of the state is receiving; not only from Denver, Colorado Springs and other large centers, but from all over the country. The Denver papers have been very liberal in devoting space to properly place the mines and other resources before the people and have thus, no doubt, induced many people to visit Durango. Of course the Neglected mine has had much to do with our advancement. Its great success has gone forth to the world, and is regarded as one of the greatest mines in the state, which means the world. The Herald fully believes that by another twelve months this property will be furnishing employment to several hundred men and adding greatly to the money supply of the country. The owners, fortunately, are Durango men, interested in our progress, and this is a very desirable thing. They will part with a portion of their earnings at least in building up and beautifying our city. When we stop and consider what one or two mines accomplished for Leadville and Denver in the early days, the prospects are certainly very encouraging. And with the Neglected prospecting and development work will bring forth additional mines, maybe not of equal value as the Neglected and perchance even greater. Durango is certainly to be congratulated on the outlook and those of us who have stood firm in our faith will surely be rewarded.

The Herald wants everyone interested in Durango and this southwest section to be full of hope and courage, because faith is bound to be rewarded. —(Durango Herald.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

Colorado and Utah must join forces in an effort to reap some speedy and substantial benefits from the new irrigation law. Western Colorado and eastern Utah have vast areas of government land that could be easily watered by a big inter-state canal taken out of the Grand river in this county. The High Line proposition is one that must appeal very strongly to the government authorities when it comes to choosing a place for the first experiment in irrigation by government aid. Here are the land and water in such measure as can be equaled no place else on the continet. What more need be said, except that a test of the entire project can be made simply by building and operating a few miles of the proposed line? The situation solves all the stipulated conditions required by the law texts and the framers of the law.—(Fruita Valley Item.

HOW THE DOCTORS SPENT YESTERDAY

Visited the Site of "Cragmor" Sanatorium in the Morning, Dined at the Antlers and then Went to Broadmoor.

The doctors who have been here for two days past en route home from the meeting of the American Climatological association in Los Angeles had a delightful day yesterday. They began with a drive that gave them a splendid idea of the country surrounding the city. In the morning they were taken in carriages, chaperoned by Dr. Solly and the mayor, Dr. Robinson, and first went to "Cragmor," the site of Dr. Solly's proposed sanitarium.

The visitors expressed themselves as greatly pleased with the proposed sanitarium and with its magnificent site. After that the drive was continued over the mesa to the Garden of the Gods and Manitou.

The party reached the city again about 2 o'clock and were then entertained at luncheon by the members of the El Paso Medical society at the Antlers hotel. Among the local physicians present were Drs. Hart, Campbell, Robinson, Aderson, Solly, Hoagland, Friedman, Libby, Swan, and others. The accident on the Midland road unfortunately called a number of the local physicians away from the entertainment. It was perhaps characteristic of the life of devotion to duty imposed on all who embrace this profession, that on what should have been, perhaps, the pleasantest day of the year to them, that they were compelled to renounce it all at the call of mercy.

The luncheon was a delightful affair in every way. The company was congenial, the surroundings beautiful, and the menu such as might tempt the appetite of an epicure. That the doctors enjoyed it after their long ride in the bracing atmosphere of Colorado goes without saying. Manager Marucchi certainly deserves a word of commendation for the excellency of his chef and service on the occasion.

There was no tedious speech making. Mayor Robinson spoke a few well chosen words of greeting and one or two of the visitors responded briefly.

After the luncheon a special car took the party to Broadmoor casino, where they heard the concert. Mr. Stark had arranged a fine program for the afternoon, and the visitors were delighted. In fact they were all immensely pleased with the beautiful resort. In the evening the visitors left for Denver and today will continue their journey home.

It must be remembered that these doctors have been studying climates for years and spending their time and money for the purpose. They are familiar with Colorado Springs, even those who have never been here before.

Dr. Otis of Boston is among the most distinguished of the visitors, and is a specialist in diseases of the lungs and throat. He expressed himself yesterday as much pleased with his short visit. He has been sending patients here for a good many years, and no doubt will continue to do so. Dr. Otis said that he had always been surprised that this city has no sanitariums worthy the reputation the place as a health resort. He was delighted with the plans that were outlined to him for the promoting of such institutions. He is in the hope that a large institution of the kind may be successfully established here under the right auspices because he and others will feel more confident about recommending the place.

Verner Z. Reed on Fifty Thousand Club

As one of Colorado Springs' most enthusiastic citizens, Mr. Verner Z. Reed was asked yesterday for his opinion in regard to the Fifty Thousand club.

"The city should most certainly have a population of 50,000," said Mr. Reed, "and I believe that one of the best ways to gain such a population is to emphasize our natural resources—our climate and our scenery. This should become one of the greatest resorts in the world, and if a body of energetic citizens should start in to do all they can to make it so, I see no reason why they should not succeed.

"There are many things which would assist them greatly. In the first place every effort should be made to beautify the city. The first requisite for this is water. We must have water," and plenty of it, to keep our lawns green and to cultivate boulevards and parks, with shade trees and shrubbery. Our roads must also be made as attractive for driving as possible, for nothing so pleases the leisure class as this.

"But one of the most important things to consider is the amusement feature. With thousands of people here for pleasure they must be given opportunities to enjoy themselves in other ways than riding, driving and mountain climbing. We already have golf links and clubs, but we must have other outdoor amusements, such as a summer theater and kindred attractions, and an annual carnival should not be overlooked.

"I spent the winter in Nice, France, which has a population of 140,000 persons, secured by the splendid climate and by the energy of the municipality. Millions of dollars have been expended in a water system, and every year the municipality manages the famous carnival which attracts tourists from all over the world. We have a climate here which will successfully rival that of Nice, and all we want is to advertise it.

"Another way in which we should make our climate and our population is to bring it to the notice of the inhabitants of the Mississippi and Missouri valleys where, now that the settlers are growing old, there are many people advanced in years who would welcome a more even climate, free from the rigors of both summer and winter. California is getting many of these people, but we should get our share. I am heartily in favor of any effort to increase our population, and have every confidence that all vigorous efforts in that direction will be successful."

The Midland Band Played Splendid Music

One of the most enjoyable concerts ever given by the Midland band took place in Cheyenne park yesterday afternoon, and fully four thousand people listened to the music. The program which Director Irving arranged included some of the best compositions which a band of this character could render. The music was of a much higher order than is included in the week-day concerts in town, and illustrates the possibilities of the band in rendering stirring music, as indicated in the Music and Drama department of this paper yesterday morning.

One of the most stirring selections was Sousa's arrangement of "The Star Spangled Banner." Sousa understands instrumentation, and he has certainly written the finest arrangement of this martial air ever produced, while the band rendered it superbly. Then there was the "Pilgrims' Chorus" from "Tannhauser," Rubenstein's Melody in F, the overture to "Maritana," and the always glorious overture to "William Tell." Sousa's "Invincible Eagle" was also given in fine style, and the Slavonic Dance No. 1 of Dvorak's was played brilliantly. This selection combines wonderful tonal quality with unusual rhythym and harmony, and proved one of the best things the band has ever played.

One of the most popular numbers given was the intermezzo from "Salome," while "The Forge in the Forest," one of the best descriptive pieces the band plays, was greeted by such vigorous applause that two encores had to be given before the program could be completed.

The concert was thoroughly enjoyed, and all who heard it hope that the band will play more of this kind of music in town.

MAIL CARRIERS AND CLERKS FOR POSTOFFICE

The postoffice department has arranged to give the local office four additional clerks and three additional carriers during the summer season when the work is so heavy, and the extra force will go to work tomorrow. The additional clerks will be W. J. Tremsdale, C. W. Boone, J. W. Buzzard and Miss Kathleen J. Browne. The three extra carriers will be obtained from those now doing substitute duty, and are as follows: E. J. Albee, Erick Paterson and J. E. Cope.

The local mails have been so heavy lately that in some cases it has been impossible to make more than one delivery in the residence district, but Postmaster Dana has now entirely redistricted the city, and two deliveries will be made, as usual. The clerks are employed for only three months, but the additional carriers will be employed permanently.

TWO ARRESTS WERE MADE

Dispute Over Right to Ground Adjoining Prospect Lake Resulted in All Sorts of Complications.

"Ladies and Gentlemen: I will have to leave you now for a little while as I am compelled to accompany the sheriff, Mr. Gilbert, to the city. I will leave the performance in charge of others who will do what they can for you."

So spoke Manager W. H. Blackburn to his audience in his tent on the Colorado Springs company's ground, adjoining the city's park property at Prospect lake yesterday, while Mme. Starr, the handcuff queen, was in the act of taking off a pair of steel bracelets with as little difficulty as she would have encountered in removing a pair of gloves.

As a matter of fact her difficulties were but a dream compared with those of her manager.

As she concluded her stunt and gave way to Mdamoiselle Light-foot, who was to do a buck and wing dance, the manager of the concern walked out and assisted Sheriff Gilbert in harnessing the former's horse, after which they drove to the city together, the theatrical manager under arrest charged, not with horse stealing, horse-breaking, obtaining money under false pretenses, or any other of the real bad things with which people who associate with the sheriff involuntarily are often charged—but with having interfered with the erection of a fence.

No one who paid his money yesterday afternoon to see a vaudeville performance at or in the vicinity of Prospect lake made any serious complaint over what he got. His contentment was due to two things. In the first place he realized that no manager of a show ever made a more honest or more hopeless effort to give a performance than was made by Manager Blackburn, and in the second place he realized that if the show inside the tent was not worth the money the show outside was.

There was a dispute of large proportions between the representative of the Colorado Springs company, owners of the ground on which the tent was pitched and Charles Zobrist, holder of the amusement privileges at the lake, as to the right of the latter to give his performance on the ground claimed to be owned by the former. Mr. Zobrist stated to a Gazette representative that he had been trying for months to get the use of this ground and had been assured that he would be given a lease on it. His representatives on the ground, W. H. Blackburn and Frank W. Nichols yesterday morning had the tent theater moved from the city ground to the ground on which Mr. Zobrist said he had a verbal lease.

Before noon Eugene Durfee, who is connected with the office of the Colorado Springs company, appeared at the ground and informed them that they were doing fruitless work, as there had been no lease of the ground agreed to by the Colorado Springs company, and the performance could not be given on this ground. The work proceeded, and early in the afternoon the sheriff and some deputies appeared and advised the show people to do nothing. They did nothing thereafter that they had not planned to do, but they proceeded to carry out their plans, and about 100 people bought tickets for the the show and went into the tent.

About the time that the buck and wing artiste was calling for faster tempo from the pianist, who had taken the place of the orchestra, which feared arrest, and did not appear, there were lively things doing in the open air on the boundary line between the city's property and that of the Colorado Springs company. The Colorado Springs company sent a wagon load of fence materials and a force of about 25 robust fence builders to the scene and proceeded to build a fence that would cut off ingress to the theater.

The fence builders began to dig holes, and Messrs. Blackburn and Nichols began to fill them up. The fence builders set up posts and the show managers pulled them down. The power of superior numbers finally decided the question, however, and by 5 o'clock there was a good strong fence where the Colorado Springs company representatives wanted it. Manager Blackburn had been arrested and taken to Justice McClelland's office and Assistant Manager Nichols had been directed by a deputy sheriff to appear at the office forthwith, which he did. Both prisoners were taken before Justice McClelland, who placed them under bonds in the sum of $350 each and fixed their hearing for Thursday. Charles Zobrist signed the bonds for both.

Mr. Zobrist claims to have secured a verbal lease on the ground from Mr. Durfee and Mr. Postlethwaite on Saturday, and both these representatives of the Colorado Springs company state that he had no lease whatsoever and was told nothing except that there was no one in Colorado Springs with authority to execute a lease.

It looks at the present time as though there will be no vaudeville specialities at the lake until after at least Thursday.

One Man Killed in D. & R. G. Wreck

Twelve freight cars of a Denver and Rio Grande train went into the ditch at Glade, between Larkspur and Castle Rock, yesterday afternoon, and one unknown tramp, riding on one of the cars, was killed.

The cause of the wreck was a broken wheel on one of the box cars, and 12 loaded cars were derailed. The tramp was riding on a car loaded with pig iron, and was killed almost instantly.

A wrecking train was sent up from Pueblo, and another from Denver was hurried to the scene of the wreck, and although work was hurried as fast as possible traffic was delayed for about three hours. The fact that the cars were loaded made the wreckage difficult to clear away, but the damage to the rolling stock was not great.

How to Destroy the White Scale

Information has just been received from the state board of horticulture touching on the nature of the cotton scale, which is infecting maple trees in this city, and how to destroy it.

The report, which is compiled from the report of J. D. Putnam of the Davenport, Iowa, Academy of Science, states that the insects remain under the branches until spring when the cottony matter is secreted, and vast quantities of eggs are laid in this. The young are hatched late in June or early in July, and soon afterward migrate to all parts of the tree, attacking the veins of the leaves.

It is important to destroy the cottony matter before the young are hatched, not only to protect the tree infected, but to prevent birds and the wind from carrying the infection to other trees. The remedy is either to dislodge the matter by brushing the branches with a stiff broom or sprinkling them with a strong head of water. If these are not efficacious, the following emulsion is suggested:

"Dissolve one-half pound of hard soap in one gallon of boiling water and while still hot add two gallons of kerosene and emulsify by passing rapidly through a force pump till it assumes a uniform creamy consistency and oil does not separate. Dilute this with 10 parts of water before using."

The trees should be headed in and sprayed with this remedy just at the time the young appear.

AT THE POLICE COURTS

At 9:30 this morning Charles X. Miller will again be brought into the criminal division of the district court and if he is able to stand the strain, an effort will be made to secure a jury to try him on the charge of murdering William Hun in Colorado City. A large venire is ready to be drawn upon and it is thought that a jury can be secured.

It is probable that court will adjourn, however, before the trial proper can be begun, and it is planned for both sessions of the court to take an adjournment in honor of the lawyers' convention in this city, and over the Fourth.

LAWYERS MEET HERE NEXT THURSDAY

The fifth annual convention of the Colorado State Bar association will meet at the Antlers tomorrow morning, and promises to be one of the most interesting gatherings the association has ever had. The events of the first day will be more or less of a business nature, but in the evening Hon. William Travers Jerome of New York, who is to be the guest of honor of the convention will deliver an address.

Mr. Jerome the reform district attorney of New York, is one of the most prominent lawyers in the country at the present time because of the stand he is taking in his public life in New York against corruption, and his address is looked forward to with much eagerness. He is expected to arrive in the city today.

The second day of the convention is to be devoted very largely by discussion of the Bucklin bill, conducted by Senator Bucklin in person; and the third day the whole party will go to Cripple Creek over the Short Line.

Miss McDonald will lecture upon Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" at Mrs. Eyre's, 1925 North Cascade avenue, this afternoon. Admission 25c.

Zoborowski was second Maurice Farman, third, Baras, fourth; Edmond, fifth and Hemery, sixth. Baron de Forest, who was seventh, was disqualified on account of an accident to his motor car. S. S. Edge, an Englishman, was the twentieth to arrive. He denies reports circulated to the effect that he was disqualified, and cites as proof that he was declared winner of the James Gordon Bennett cup

Salt Lake and return, $18.00, July 1 and 2, good 30 days, July 1 to September 30 inclusive, $24.00, good to October 31. Also 24 and 31, July 15, 16 and 25, $20.00.

CRACK BOY TEAMS WILL PLAY BALL

Arrangements are being made for a most interesting ball game between two juvenile teams on Washburn field the Fourth of July It is planned to have a game between the Centrals of this city who have not met a defeat this season, and the corresponding star team of Pueblo, also unconquered up to the present date

These youthful nines put up an excellent game of ball Some of their scores are as low as 3 to 4 and such games must be errorless to a considerable degree, as ragged ball playing will not keep the score down as close as that

The juvenile teams of this city are a special interest of Mr Hubert Strang, who takes a delight in teaching the youngsters the proper way to play ball and in encouraging them in every way possible He says that the Centrals can put up as fine a game as many mature teams and that the contest between them and the crack boy team of Pueblo is sure to be exceedingly interesting

INTENSE COTTON MILL IN KANSAS

By Associated Press

Kansas City, Mo., June 29.—The Star says.

The largest cotton mill in the world is to be built within 20 miles of Kansas City Ten million dollars is to be invested, $3,100 000 of which has been subscribed by eastern and western men. W B Smith, president of the Olympia and Granby cotton mills of Columbia, S C, is to be president and general manager of the enterprise The mill will have 500,000 spindles and 12,000 looms It will employ 4,800 operators and have a pay roll of $2,450,000 a year.

The capacity of the mills will be 1,000 bales of cotton a year, with an output of 25,000,000 pounds of finished cloth. The value of the annual output will, it is estimated, amount to twelve and three-quarter million dollars. Electricity will be used as the motive power and several new devices will be installed There will be four mill buildings, covering an aggregate of 2,000 acres of ground.

The mill was promoted by Witten McDonald, formerly a banker in Kansas City and later editor of the Kansas City Times, who recently has been interested in mills at Mammoth Springs, Ark.

CONGRESS SLATED FOR ADJOURNMENT TUESDAY

By Associated Press

Washington June 29—The exact time when the present session of congress shall come to a close cannot be foretold There is no definite information as to when an agreement will be reached on the Philippine civil government bill However the general consensus of opinion places the adjournment on Tuesday at the latest Wednesday This prediction involves the opinion that the Philippines conferees will be able to conclude their work tomorrow That they can do this is quite evident, in view of what has already been accomplished in the way of harmonising the differences on that bill and on account of the probability that parts of the measure will be dropped in case it should appear that no agreement can be reached on account of prolonged exchange of views Neither house is disposed to extend the session for more than a day or two for the purpose of securing agreement on all the features of the bill when it is felt on all hands that the preservation of no one feature of the bill is necessary to its success as a whole It is not believed in any quarter that either house will consume a great deal of time in debating the conference report when reported but lest the debate should run longer than is expected the resolution fixing the time for adjournment will not be brought in until the Philippine conference shall be made to and accepted by both houses

Of the appropriation bills only the general deficiency and the naval bill remain to receive the finishing touches There are still some points of difference on each of these measures between the two houses but none that cannot be harmonized whenever the Philippine bill shall be out of the way Neither house will attempt much other business The senate calendar contains a number of measures which can be discussed and there is an understanding in the house that the militia bill shall be used as a base of discussion to fill in the time when conference reports are not at hand for consideration There is also an understanding that the London dock charges bill shall be taken up under a suspension of the rules after the resolution fixing the hour for adjournment

Both houses will close the session with exceptionally clean calendars and with the feeling on all hands that it has been a session of important achievements

MCCLURG'S LECTURE

The lecture to be given by Secretary McClurg at the Opera house tomorrow night on "Peak, Pass and Plain" will be a rare treat for all who attend.

The Los Angeles Express said of the entertainment "Gilbert McClurg's picture last evening was very interesting and well attended The speaker was introduced to his audience by Mayor Snyder in a few felicitous remarks, to which he gracefully responded, and then at once embarked with his subject His descriptions and historical notices were fine and valuable, and the stereopticon pictures with which he accompanied them were beautiful and greatly added to the interest These together with the words of the lecturer were a revelation to many in the audience which were much enjoyed The entertainment was indorsed and supported by the irrigation association of California and by Los Angeles chamber of commerce."

'Peak Pass, and Plain' brings the audience 'the plains across with Lieutenant Pike, and the splendidly colored stereopticon views show Indian attacks on pioneer emigrant trains the weird Titanic rocks of the Garden of the Gods, the ascent of Pike a Peak by wagon horseback and cog-railroad a crimson and gold sunrise from the summit of the peak camera shots at wild mountain lions bears coyotes and deer"

Announcement is made that gallery seats at the McClurg lecture tonight will be 25 cents each, and the lower floor and balcony will be $1 and 50 cents respectively

CASINO CONCERTS WERE GIVEN YESTERDAY

Two enjoyable concerts were given yesterday afternoon and evening by Stark's orchestra at the Broadmoor casino and the excellent musical which the beautiful music was rendered made additional friends for this orchestra, which has ever delighted music lovers in this city The audiences were smaller than they should have been They have been altogether too small during the entire season this far and it is to be hoped that a keener appreciation will be awakened during the brief weeks these musicians remain here

The features of the programs given yesterday were the Peer Gynt suite in the afternoon and Tschaikowsky's 'Casse-Noisette' suite in the evening It is not too much to say that the Grieg music has never been more daringly played while the brilliant quality of Tschaikowsky's harmonies was given splendid rendition by the orchestra The programs were replete with other selections, equally well given

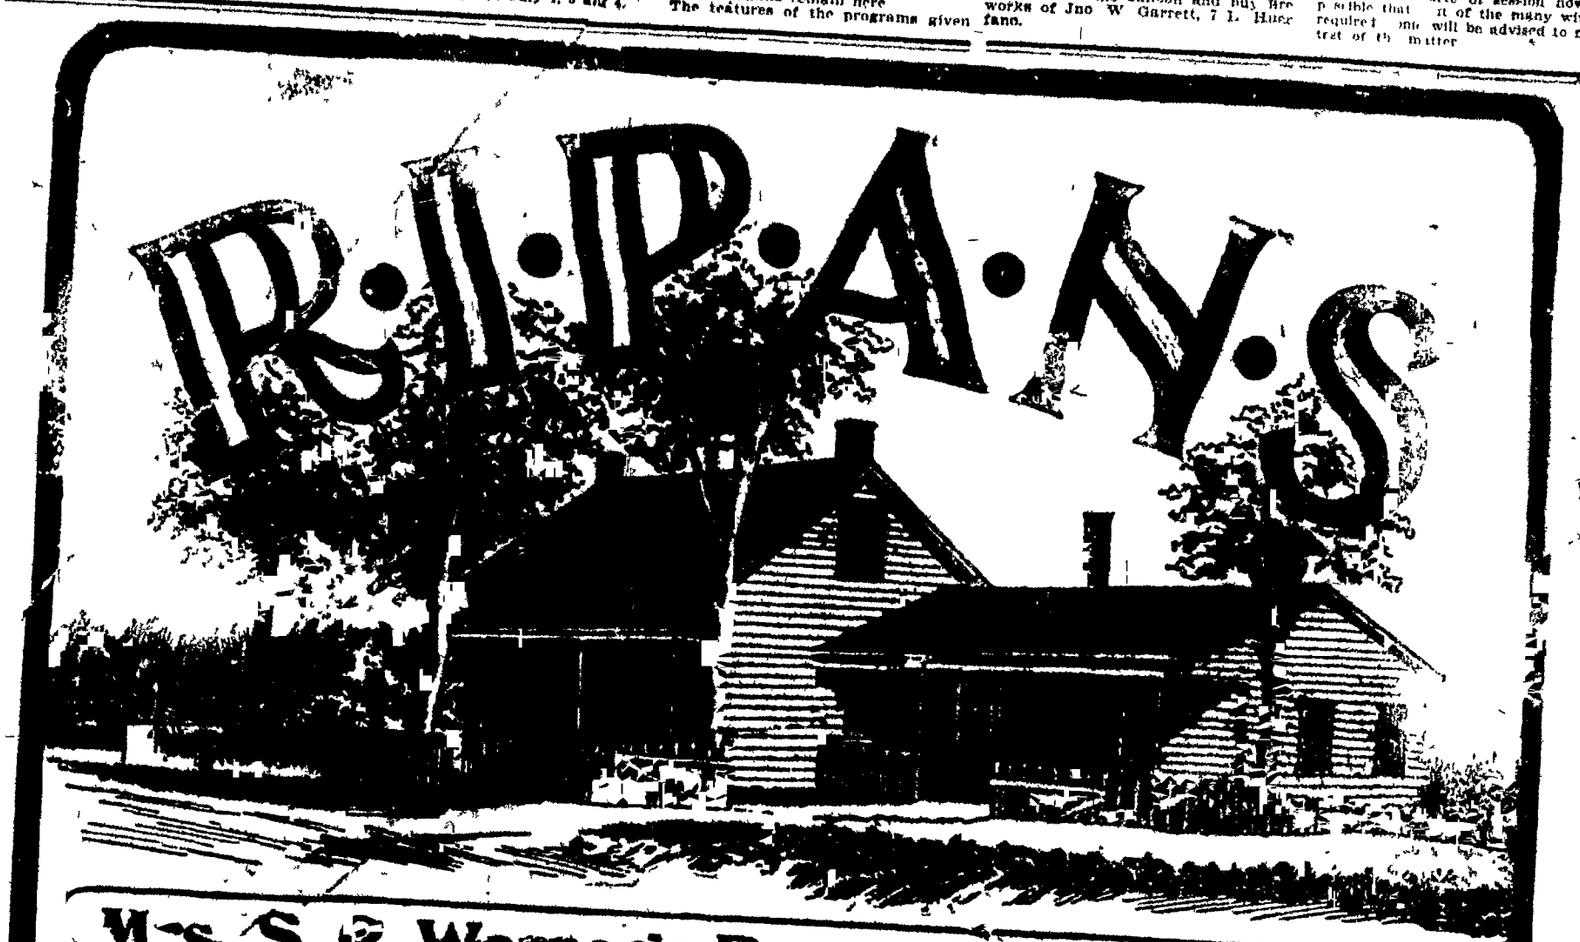
WITNESSES MAY WANT FEES IN ADVANCE

Some interest has been caused in local court circles over the possibility that witnesses in all cases may demand fees in advance There is no statute covering this matter and it is learned some lawyers are advising witnesses not to respond to the subpoena unless it is accompanied by a fee The more conservative of the profession do not sanction making this a practice but they are unable to advance any authority against those who do

The judges have held a conference over the matter but they were unable to come to any agreement The only point upon which they all agree is the right to ask a witness in examination if he was paid in advance for his testimony and his refusal to answer is taken as a plain case of contempt to be punished at the discretion of the court

No case has yet arisen where the witness has refused to answer the subpoena, but it is stated that any time one may do so demanding his fee in advance With the several courts in session now it is possible that one of the many witnesses required may will be advised to make a test of the matter



Mrs. S. C. Warner's Remarkable Testimonial.

One of the most convincing testimonials to the efficacy of RIPANS TABULES as a positive cure for all stomach troubles is given by Mrs. S. C. Warner, whose home is situated about [illegible] miles north of the city of Burlington, Vermont.

Mrs Warner is a [illegible] resident of the city and is well and favorably known in the community. Her testimonial is direct and strong and [illegible] easily verified. She says: "I was [illegible] sick one years ago next March, and a my life had been a great sufferer with [illegible] and indigestion. For two or three years ago I was sure that nothing would help me, as I had tried almost every known remedy—none giving me much relief. One day my family physician, Dr. [illegible], called me to try RIPANS TABULES, as he had found them of great benefit in several obstinate cases of indigestion and dyspepsia. I will say candidly that I had little faith in them or in any other medicine when I began taking the TABULES. Much to my surprise, I felt better within a day, and was soon greatly relieved. I kept them and continued to improve. [illegible] a new man, and my neighbors and friends saw a great change for the better in my health.

"Dyspepsia runs in the family; my mother had it for years, and other relatives have suffered tortures with it. I can't say too much in favor of RIPANS TABULES. Before I began taking them, I could eat nothing but the very plainest food—a little bread and butter and tea being my principal diet for a long time. Especially was this true at night, and when I ate a supper at [illegible] quickly suffered in consequence. Now this is all changed. I desire to eat anything extra or supper—cake, pie or other delicacies—simply take a TABULE at meal time and before I retire. I feel perfectly safe in taking them, and have never been troubled in the least [illegible] summer. I wanted a strawberry [illegible] could not eat a [illegible] on account of [illegible] should be sick, [illegible] however, I always [illegible] was saying, 'In Summer wanted some and [illegible] chance it, knowing [illegible] me, [illegible] me.

"Of course I take the TABULES regularly and according to the box, as every man and woman going to bed. I don't know how many boxes I have taken—several dozen at least, and I would not be without them for anything. A year or so ago I quit stop taking them for a time, but could not begin again, they were of so much benefit. I now keep a box of the popular five-cent boxes, which I find is a box, the best.

"Some of the neighbors have laughed at me for having so much faith in the TABULES, saying that I had more faith in them than I had in God; but of course this is not so. I have always been subject to bad sick headaches and [illegible] the TABULES, and you don't know what a relief it is to be entirely free from these. It is truly wonderful the change it has made in me. My friends tell me I look and act twenty-five years younger. I have been a widow nineteen years and have five children. They have also been benefited by taking RIPANS TABULES, and I can't say too much in praise of the remedy.

"MRS. S. C. WARNER."

Corroborated by the Physician.

"Dr. W. A. [illegible], a [illegible] physician of Burlington, Vt., in an interview said:

"I have recommended RIPANS TABULES on many occasions as an excellent remedy for stomach troubles, and a busy man, and [illegible] I [illegible] to [illegible] them, instead of supplying a prescription simply say: 'Take RIPANS TABULES.' They do so and are relieved."

"Do you recommend the TABULES to Mrs. S. C. Warner?"

"I believe I do, although I have recommended them so often that I cannot remember. Mrs. Warner is my patient. I consider the TABULES a simple and effective medicine for all stomach troubles."

[illegible] a remedy any condition of [illegible] must in part, [illegible] RIPANS TABULES, and the price, ten for 5 cents, does not bar them [illegible] cents. For children the chocolate coated sort, the present time. There are many causes of this new appreciation of the problems of modern civilization. The new interpretation of everything by the theory of evolution has given a new unity to the whole world process, revealing growth and has consequent y given a better understanding of the place of human life and institutions in e great order of life. The quickening learning during the last third of a ntury and the spirit of scientific inry has led to a better conception of possibility and the need of a science human society. The growth of the t of democracy ha[s] ...mulated an ...and an exami... ...ation of the evils

...s celebration of the anniversary of the American independence affords us an opportunity to study somewhat into our national affairs. The separation of America from the mother country in 1776 and the consequent war of revolution, mark only what was inevitable sooner or later in the history of the two countries. A country of such remarkable natural resources and whose very greatness of area cultivated a spirit of self-reliance and independence, could not long be colonial and dependent. The friendly spirit of co-operation existing between the two nations will afford a close and better union than any political bond could have afforded.

International relations during the last five years have been full of surprises. There have been forced upon us the larger problems of international economics, the duties of the great nations to the smaller ones and to the subject and less civilized races and also the steps for the social ...ement of ... The new problems have been of such dimensions that our greatest minds have been staggered and the thought of the average citizen has been greatly confused. We cannot come to a quick and easy solution of world-wide questions. National and social harmony is a matter of growth oftentimes very slow.

The fact that social harmony is a growth demands a philosophic view of economic, moral and intellectual movements of society. There is a true and natural explanation of even the volcanic forces which throw up great men and overthrow dominant powers and ...r in their stead new organizations. ...ch characters as Cyrus the Great, ...exander, Augustus, Charlemagne, ...mwell, Napoleon and Washington; ...n organizations as the Holy Roman ...ire, the English commonwealth, the ...nch and American republics are not ...out sufficient causes which may be ...ed far back into history. The philosophic mind applied ...istory has had much to do in dis... on the color of the skin; the shape and volume of the skull and other clearly defined anatomical marks, the human race comprises several species of very different origin. Peoples closely resembling one another in physical characteristics may differ widely in their modes of feeling and acting; and consequently in their civilization, beliefs and arts. The mental differences and characteristics of an Englishman, a Spaniard and an Arab are very apparent and can be detected and traced throughout their history. The psychological study of races shows that behind the institutions, arts, beliefs and ... political upheavals of each people ...le certain ... intellectual and moral characteristics which ... determine their evolution and which give ... the distinctive mark to languages, religions and political organizations. All of these distinguishing marks, particularly the psychical, form what may be called the soul of the race, the aggregate of these traits constitutes the national character.

In the larger groupings the white, the black, the yellow and the red would naturally associate themselves together, color being the dividing line. The natural lines making the nations are racial kinship, the consciousness of kind in physical and mental characteristics, in historic associations and traditions. Greeks, Hebrews, Egyptians, Germans, English and French would naturally group themselves into separate nationalities. Common sentiments, interests and beliefs created by slow hereditary accumulations, give a high degree of identity and fixity to the mental constitution of a people.

People united by this consciousness of kind also limited the spirit of brotherhood to their own clan or tribe. This fact accounts for the feuds and wars between the Israelites and surrounding nations. Racial differences and the consequent antagonism account for much of the strife among the earlier nations, and is at the basis of the old nationalism.

The earlier times were marked by wars in which the masses gathered about the few for protection. There were the divine rights of kings, the arbitrary power of God; everything was for the welfare of the king and for the glory of God; the masses counted for little; the aristocracy and the elect were favorite terms in politics and religion. We can hardly realize the hardships and suffering of the common people through war and taxation caused largely by the whims and disputes of kings and courts.

The immense standing armies of the world are relics of that old spirit of strife and greed and the desire to settle disputes by might rather than by right. If we grant that in the earlier times war was the necessary and rough-and-ready means of progress, we even then ... has played a large, if not the largest, part. The cost of strikes and lock-outs —war in the industrial circles in the United States—has been enormous. The Pullman strike is said to have cost the whole country and the parties immediately concerned about $90,000,000,000. The general bill of expense for the strikes and lock-outs from 1881 to 1894 amounts to over $300,000,000. A recent examination of the cities of York and London by experts shows that 27 per cent of the people in York and 30 per cent in London are below the poverty line.

With the increased intelligence during the last quarter of the century the present social order and the old national spirit have been seriously challenged in many quarters. Some have rebelled and have assumed a revolutionary spirit; the majority of thoughtful citizens are endeavoring to make an intelligent examination of the problems confronting us with a view to a peaceful remedy of the evils and to gradual reconstruction of society, so that the best possible opportunities for self-maintenance and self-realization may be afforded to all men. The divine right of kings has been giving place to ideas of the welfare of the whole people; doctrines of the ... of God have come to mean the uplift and ... social betterment of all men. There is ... applied, a scientific spirit to the investigation of social difficulties and all human affairs. These larger conceptions of life and society have led to

2. A transition of the spirit of nationalism.—There are now two strong tendencies in our American democracy which are somewhat common to the leading civilized nations. The spirit of our own foreign policy, heretofore has been to avoid display of power and entangling alliances. Washington voiced the national sentiment in these memorable words:

"The great rule of conduct for us in regard to foreign nations is in extending our commercial relations, to have with them as little political connection as possible. . . . . Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or her enmities. Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to pursue a different course. . . . . Why forego the advantages of so peculiar a situation? Why quit our own ground to stand upon foreign ground? Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalship, interest, humor or caprice? It is our true course to steer ... clear of permanent alliances ... any ruthless engendered by party and sect.

The attempt is made to apply both science and true religion to the affairs of life. Ethical motives are to be made the ruling principles of individual and national conduct. The unity of human nature makes the strong the natural protectors and guardians of the weak.
All men in whatever stage of progress have a right to live and to enjoy the resources of their own countries. The melting of men of character and happiness is seen to be greater than the building of empires.

A class in Europe and America are demanding that the millions and millions of money used in maintaining standing armies and great fleets of war, in supporting soldiers in idleness and in cultivating the spirit of war and bloodshed, shall be used in social betterment.
England with 27 to 30 per cent of her people below the poverty line, all Europe in the same condition, and the United States approaching more or less rapidly this percentage of degradation, are making more strenuous the demand that the money spent in maintaining armies and navies and in conducting wars of conquest shall be used in uplifting the submerged tenth which is fast becoming the submerged third of the whole population. A nation—the whole world—is understood to be a place where mankind, every member of it, shall realize to the fullest possibility the divine humanity. The nation, more supremely than the individual, has its function in a larger life, the life of the whole human race; its ultimate aim is the service of humanity.

There are the two forces actually at work in our modern civilization. Modern imperialism, seeking commercial expansion and territorial acquisition, is tempted to gain its end by the means easy at hand when there are great standing armies and military equipments. Alongside of this tendency the great ethical principles of the rig-of all men to live and the duty of the strong to the weak, the degraded and the ignorant, in aiding them to realize the highest possibility of their lives. All the resources and agencies of wealth, learning, politics and religion are to be used in uplifting men everywhere.
These two great forces, economic and moral, are moving in the whole of civilization. The task of the Twentieth century is to work out a solution of the problem of the right relation of nations to the dependent classes and to the less progressive and subject races, in a way that shall be in accord with the noblest ethics and worthy of a truly Christian civilization. I am not here to bemean the motives of any party or class; I speak not as a member of any party or class, but as a Christian minister who seeks to inspire all men to love the truth and to do the right to their fellow men everywhere. The desire for truth and right must lead to

2. A new national spirit and higher national ideals than the leading countries of the world have had before. A great deal has been written and said about progress and human progress. We number of the citizens are men and women of intelligence, true affection and good will, and, therefore, self-reliant, self-controlling and self-supporting.
Progress then must be an advance toward this ideal life, not only in a nation but over the whole world.

A nation having somewhat clearly before it this ideal, whatever its name, kingdom, empire or republic, becomes in reality an ethical democracy. In such a government the whole people are included in all the calculations. All phases of the political system exist for the welfare of all the citizens. The standard is man at his best, and all men at their best. The whole process is one of emancipation, not only to make men free, but also self-reliant, self-maintaining and self-governing.

Each nation must do her best by all of her own people. She must courageously face and solve the problem of her own poverty, crime and other evils.
The causes producing these evils lie within her bounds; her duty is to remove these causes as far as possible, rather than as has been done so largely in the past, to allow, and even aid, in the emigration of these dependent classes to other countries. No country or community has a right to shift her helpless and dependent and incorrigible upon another nation or community. The times demand

4. A new internationalism, of which the first factor is

1. International peace. Mr. John Bright once said, "If we may presume to ask ourselves, what in the eye of the Supreme Ruler is the greatest crime His creatures commit, I think we may almost with certainty conclude that it is the crime of war." The world has become exceedingly small through the means of rapid communication; the nations have become so interdependent through commerce, industry and the exchange of thought that any conflict between any two governments is accompanied with great loss and disturbance to the interests of all powers. The common weal of all peoples makes obligatory the conditions of universal peace.
Each country, however small or insignificant, has some contribution to make to human welfare. It should be the pleasure and the pride of each nation to support a great peace and arbitration tribunal and to select her profoundest authorities on international law to become members of such a court.

The establishment of such a tribunal should be closely followed by the gradual disarming of the nations of Europe.
The armies and navies of each country should gradually be reduced to the lowest possible peace footing. Amid universal peace the military expense should be among the smallest items of outlay.
As it now is the military burdens are among the heaviest resting upon the nations of modern times. The cost in money alone is crippling and almost bankrupting the leading powers. The expense in money is not the whole cost.
The most vigorous men are removed from the ranks of wealth-producing industry. There is kept alive the hostile people of the leading countries are now below, or quickly approaching, the line of poverty, the question is so serious that international action should be taken for social uplift. There can be no lasting and widespread social ameloration until the best thought, energy and love of the world is brought to this great task. It is far better for a family that every member of it should be self-supporting; it is far better for a city or a state if every citizen is self-maintaining and self-governing so that there need not be expended $5,000,000 or $10,000,000 annually in charity, as is done in New York city alone. It is beyond question better for the nations of the world if they can so coöperate and thereby remove the producing causes and thus reduce to a minimum the number of those who make no material or moral returns for their means of support.

There is still another and even larger field of service open for international co-operation. Our duty to the subject and backward races was never more clear than it now is in the light of ethical and Christian principles. The Chinese have a right to live and to live in their own country, and to enjoy the bounties which their own natural resources will provide. No nation of the world has any right to any district or mine belonging to those peoples. The duty of the great powers of the world is to prove their honor and sincerity by dealings so honorably and patiently with all the backward races that their confidence may be won. History will not bear an investigation creditable to the so-called Christian countries in this respect. These races, like other less progressive peoples, should be aided in fully realizing their birthright and in reaching the level of a true civilization.
Individuals and nations need constantly to be reminded that everywhere and among all peoples there is but one principle of right, clothed in the words of justice and brotherhood.

"God of our fathers, known of old—
Lord of our far-flung battle line—Beneath whose awful hand we hold Dominion over palm and pine—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget.

"The tumult and the shouting dies—
The captains and the kings depart—
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget.

"Far-called our navies melt away—
On dune and headland sinks the fire—
Lo, all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre!
Judge of the nations, spare us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget."

We carry only the best grade of fireworks and solicit your orders for the Stock Market Matters.

Colorado Springs, June 30.—It's rash to venture on prediction unless possessed of knowledge. The present mining craze is for consolidations and many investors have gained from bitter financial experience enough knowledge regarding them to last a lifetime. Nearly all the recent big, overgrown consolidations are monuments of failure. An active company moderately capitalized gives better results to stockholders than the same company consolidated with others, controlling three times the acreage, but with the capital stock increased out of all proportion to the mineral in sight It is not the acreage but the mineral that makes a property valuable

The first axe that struck hard at the trunk of the tree of confidence was the consolidation of the Independence Consolidated company The immediate results were that hundreds of traders in our stock market became disgusted sold out all their stocks and flew the coop.

The Mabel M, whose stock was originally sold at 50 cents and the Gold Dollar, selling at one time at 26 cents were consolidated into the Gold Dollar Consolidated company, and this rare and remarkable security now sells at 4 cents a share

The Doctor Jack Pot consolidation was carried through with a great flourish of trumpets and for no real good reason that anyone can discover, unless perhaps it was to make money for half a dozen men and cause half a dozen hundred men to drop their wad

The Elkton owning 34 acres, was quietly doing a nice business with about a million shares outstanding and an ample cash and treasury stock reserve One fine day the Elkton consolidated with the Raven and Tornado companies Before taking the woods were full of most remarkable accounts of the tremendous ore values in the Raven and Tornado properties After taking little is heard from these wonderful ore bodies in the Raven and Tornado The Elkton Consolidated stock was increased 150 per cent the acreage was increased 100 per cent but the actual ore productiveness was hardly increased 10 per cent

Under these conditions the Elkton or Walter vein had to produce $100 000 every three months to keep up the dividend rate on all the extra watered stock instead of some $40 000 on the old Elkton stock The Elkton or Walter vein wouldn't stand for it dividends were passed and the stock declined. Under going conditions two and one-quarter shares of Elkton stock represents one share of the old stock Multiply 80 cents by two and one-quarter and we get $1 35, or close to the average price of the old Elkton stock before the consolidation

But it was the consolidation that hurt. The man who bought a thousand shares of old Elkton had the right to suppose he owned a one-thousandth part of the entire property After the consolidation he woke up to find he really owned 1-560th part of the property, and that his interest was rapidly shrinking to meet the new ratio of value of the smaller percentage of actual mineral assets, represented by his 1,000 shares of stock Bamboozled somewhat but hardly knowing just how, he could and would sell out and stay out, and he did Consolidations all along the line have hurt confidence first in the small holder, generally losing a large proportion of his original shares in entering the consolidation and secondly in the small holder seeing his greatly reduced holdings rapidly diminish in value after the consolidation is effected

This consolidation craze is now spreading among the cheaper stocks partly because the insiders generally obtain a large rake off for promotion services and also in the hope that by some obstruse twist of Christian science four bad apples might by some miracle develop into one good, big, round sound specimen

What is past is past but in future, act and judge wisely and carefully before entering upon new consolidations. Each owner of stock must judge if it is best for him to enter into any combinations where the value of his 1 000 shares today may be cut in half to morrow.

Just now a misleading air of cheapness seems to be the leading characteristic of many of the recently consolidated and used-to-pay dividend shares Present prices may seem much cheaper than formerly but don't forget that in buying 1,000 shares today you are not buying the same amount of dividend paying capacity that you obtained before the stocks in these companies were over-capitalized Because a company could pay a 4 cent quarterly dividend on 1,000 000 shares it's no reason the same company, by simply doubling their sheep pasture acreage can pay a 4-cent quarterly dividend on 2 500 000 shares To double your mineral capacity is business, to only double acreage is folly

The two great drawbacks Cripple Creek stocks have at present to contend with are high capitalization and high taxes in Teller county The leading copper mine in this country, the Calumet and Hecla, has 100,000 shares of stock. The leading gold mine, the Homestake, has 220,000 shares The par value of mining stocks is of no consequence, because profits are divided by the number of shares and the results are dividends The par value of a bond is of the greatest importance, because a bond pays interest on its face value In the light of greater experience, we regard 1,000,000 shares as the largest amount of stock any mining company should be allowed to have under United States laws If you will think a minute you will see such a law would operate as a great measure of protection to investors

The high taxation placed by the authorities of Teller county on companies owning prospective mining property is crushing the life out of the future hopes of the camp itself The situation shows plainly on the blackboards of the exchange today. Eastern money is afraid to invest in the face of the great possibility of seeing the entire property sold for taxes, and property cannot be developed without money. Taxes of three years ago were, perhaps, too low, but to increase them 500 to 1,000 per cent. means not only to kill the hen, but to throw the golden egg overboard, both for Cripple Creek and the mining investor, who under different circumstances is willing to run chances. Moderate taxation would mean the beginning of a renewal of confidence and better times in and for Teller county

We are far from being big, individual bulls on the high-priced stocks. The condition of the Portland mill is so far satisfactory. It is expected that the July dividend will be announced, and it would probably be a surprise and conservative policy to pass all dividends until January, 1903, and meanwhile accumulate a handsome treasury reserve

The Elkton is sunk down 920 feet. The seventh level is dry and shows a large body of low grade ore The eighth level is pretty wet, but some nice smelting ore shows at the breast of the drift. Expenses including handling the water are very heavy, and it will be a long day before dividends are handed round again. We still expect to see Elkton sell down to 50 cents

Isabella keeps up pretty well on the moderate showing They have some ore on the eleventh level and hope to find it in the next level below. There are no signs of unwatering the property and prospecting at depth We anticipate little more than a scalping market on Isabella for some time to come

For a cheaper list buy Acacia, C C Cons Findley and Work Good cheaper actives ones are Dante, Coriolanus, Creede & C C Gold Bond, Gold Sovereign Rose Maud, Rose Nirol and Sunset Eclipse while a little lower down are Pointer Prince Albert, Sedan and Virginia M Some very low priced ones are Bob Lee, Rattler, Old Gold O K Mary Nevin, Coldstone Cons Detroit, Olive Branch and Easter Bell

The thanks of mining investors are due to the Elkton management for opening their mines for the inspection of the brokers. Many other companies would derive benefit from following Elkton's example Long distance crosscage tunnels will undoubtedly prove the salvation of many companies now struggling with water. We advocated this course in our article on Portland in our Yearbook of Mines in 1899.

This letter is pretty long, still it will be welcome news to all to know that taxes on sales of mining stocks are discontinued on and after July . Send us your orders

NEARLY TREBLE ITS PRODUCTION FROM CRIPPLE CREEK

United States Reduction and Refining Company Will Greatly Augment Its Output—Some Interesting History.

The United States Reduction and Refining company, owners of the Colorado-Philadelphia and Standard Milling and Smelting company's plants at Colorado City, and of the smelting plant at Canon City, of the United States Smelting company, are to build before long another new and large plant, to be located at some desirable Colorado point. If Colorado Springs or Colorado City secures the location of this plant it will result in a substantial increase in population and wages paid and great efforts will be made to secure the location here. The Colorado City plants alone belonging to the United States Reduction and Refining company, distribute over $50,000 per month for labor.

The history of the treatment of Cripple Creek ores is the history of a great struggle. Millions have been expended for which there has been but little return. But the United States company has been magnificently successful, and its new plant if located here will be a most valuable acquisition.

Some interesting statements bearing upon the reduction and mining of Cripple Creek ores show this to be the case.

Late in the year 1896 the erection of the Lawrence Chlorination plant, at a point within a mile's distance of Victor Colorado was commenced by people at present interested in the United States Reduction and Refining company and was the first chemical reduction plant erected for the purpose of handling Cripple Creek ores. This mill began operations about May 1894 and was the only plant competing with the smelters located at various Colorado points, for Cripple Creek ores. At the time operations were commenced treatment charges ranged from $10 to $16 per ton, according to the grade of ore, the shipper receiving a payment per ounce for gold contents of $19.

In the past eight years treatment charges have been gradually reduced from time to time, until at present treatment rates range from $5.50 per ton to $10 per ton on the same grades of ore on which at the time the Lawrence mill first started, shippers were obliged to stand a tariff of $10 to $16 per ton.

In addition to the reduction in cost per ton of ore treated the shippers of ores now receive, instead of $19 per ounce for gold contents, $20 per ounce. For instance, shippers of one ounce ore for the first two or three years after the erection of the Lawrence mill had to pay a treatment of $10 per ton and received $19 per ounce for gold which resulted in net returns to the shipper from the reduction plant of $9 per ton of ore shipped. On this same grade of ore today the shipper can obtain a treatment charge per ton of $6 and receives per ounce for gold contents $20, the net returns, therefore, being at the present time $14 per ton. Thus it will be seen that the treatment charges at present result in a saving to shippers through the perfection and proper application of improved methods both mechanical and metallurgical, on one ounce ore of $5 per ton. On other grades of ore careful comparison will show an equally large saving, and on some of the higher grades a much greater saving per ton of ore shipped. For instance in 1894 and for some time thereafter shippers of three-ounce, or $60 ore, were obliged to pay a treatment charge of $14 per ton, receiving $18 per ounce for gold, thereby receiving net from the reduction plants $42 per ton. At the present time, shippers of three-ounce, or $60, ore can obtain a treatment of about $10.50 per ton, receiving for gold contents $20 per ounce thereby receiving net from the reduction plants $49.50 per ton on this grade of ore, an apparent saving of $6.50 per ton of ore shipped. This same ratio of saving exists in all grades of ore and on some of the particularly high grade ores amounts to much more than the last mentioned saving.

The improved appliances and the improved methods not only mechanical but technical have not been improved perfected and discovered and ultimately successfully applied without great cost and loss to various investors in milling enterprises. It is well known fact that the owners of the Lawrence mill which was a plant handling about 50 tons per day put in operation $500,000 in that venture before they were enabled to operate the plant without actual loss.

The plant of the El Paso Reduction company originally located at Gillett built and owned by local and eastern capital suffered a tremendous loss to the owners, and notwithstanding several years of experimenting under different managements this plant never was able to show any profit although it was the largest in the Cripple Creek district handling from 60 to 80 tons per day. Numerous other plants were constructed in the Cripple Creek district and without mentioning in detail the many stamp mills erected none of which was ever successful the more prominent reduction plants have all proved dismal failures.

In addition to the Gillett and Lawrence mills the "Brodie mill," the "Rosebud mill," the "Arequa mill," the "Detroit mill," and the "Oneida mill, and also the "Peck mill" (built for the purpose of handling Stratton's Independence ore only) were plants of capacity ranging from 60 to 150 tons per day and all resulted in tremendous losses to their owners. They are now idle and worthless or being dismantled and sold for old iron. The aggregate of the financial loss would be difficult to compute but runs into many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The Economic plant built some three years ago near Victor has been operated with indifferent success, and represents a terrific investment for its owners considering the very small tonnage handled.

At Florence a plant known as the El Paso mill with a capacity of 100 tons per day, never met with any great success and represented a cost of considerably over $200,000. This mill was destroyed by fire.

The Page mill, also located at Florence, being about a 60 ton plant and costing considerably over $100,000.00, was an utter failure.

The plant of the United States Economic Gold Extraction company built in 1894 and located at Florence, costing fully $300,000, practically never turned a wheel.

The Kilton Reduction plant at Florence, built by Denver and eastern people, costing considerably over $100,000 was an utter failure, and was purchased by people now interested in the United States Reduction and Refining company and remodeled at a great expense. It is now held as a reserve plant.

The plant of the Metallic Extraction company built and operated by some of the largest owners of mines in Cripple Creek, in 1894, costing considerably over $500,000 and handling over 300 tons of ore per day, succeeded in the first six years operation in paying to its owners only one dividend of $50,000.

Another small plant was erected on the ruins of the plant built in 1894, and known as the United States Economic Gold Extraction company, by the Beam process people, resulting in serious loss to its backers.

Some two years ago a smelting plant, known as the Rocky Mountain smelter was erected by local and eastern people with a reputed capacity of some 400 tons per day, largely for the purpose of handling Cripple Creek ores. This smelting plant is now abandoned.

It must be remembered that often mills are built solely because the promoters, who have the construction and letting of contracts in hand, receive large commissions from manufacturing houses which furnish the machinery. It is a well known fact that some of the mills mentioned would never have been built if the commissions on the machinery had not been paid by the promoters.

Early in 1896 the plant of the Colorado-Philadelphia Reduction company was built at Colorado City and had the benefit of the experience gained at the Lawrence and Gillett plants. This plant was originally a 200-ton plant and started in operation late in the year 1896 and was gradually increased in the following years, to the present capacity of 350 tons per day. This company has paid regular dividends from the first. In increasing the capacity of the Colorado-Philadelphia company's plant the economy resulting in the handling of ore on a large scale, as compared with a comparatively small plant was demonstrated. Having enlarged the Colorado Philadelphia plant as far as practicable the owners determined upon the erection of a plant adjoining. This plant was known as the Standard Milling and Smelting company and had a capacity of 450 tons per day making a total reduction capacity at Colorado City of 800 tons per day. The saving per ton of ore treated in the way of decreased cost when handling 800 tons of ore per day as against the cost per ton of handling 350 tons per day exceeded the expectations by far.

The syndicate controlling the Colorado-Philadelphia Reduction company, the Standard Milling and Smelting Co., at Colorado City, Colo. and the National Gold Extraction company at Florence (which was formerly known as the Kilton Reduction company) had an ore reducing capacity of about 1,000 tons of ore per day. Late in the year 1900 a new reduction plant was started at Florence, known as the Union Gold Extraction company having a capacity of about 275 tons per day and costing about $425,000.00 which however was never successfully operated until the acquisition and complete rebuilding by the United States Reduction and Refining company at a cost of $150,000 to $200,000 in 1901.

The operation of this plant together with the other plants resulted in all operating at from one half to two thirds of their capacity the smaller plants losing money and the larger ones making but little.

Early in 1901 owing to this state of affairs the owners of the larger plants conceived the idea of combining under one ownership and operating at full capacity such plants as were necessary to handle the Cripple Creek output. This combination was effected and a company was organized known as the United States Reduction & Refining company to take over the various plants. The result of this combination has been that the plants best adapted to the treatment of Cripple Creek ores are kept in operation, the idle plants being always kept in readiness for any increase in tonnage.

The cost of the plants of the United States Reduction & Refining company is far in excess of what is generally supposed being several million dollars. In addition to investment a tremendous working capital is required to successfully operate to the best advantage. Out of the many stockholders of the United States Reduction & Refining company a vast number are heavily interested in Cripple Creek mining stocks and the men in active charge of the company's business alone control one-eighth of the stock of the Short Line railroad and contributed largely to the successful completion of that road.

During the railroad war, now ending, it is a fact that shippers entering into contracts for the treatment of their ore have been conceded the benefit of the cut railroad rate, either directly or indirectly.

The stock of the United States Reduction & Refining company is listed in the New York Stock exchange, and the stability of these securities has greatly assisted in offsetting the adverse opinion occasioned by the unreasonable decline in almost all other Cripple Creek securities and the lack of dividends from the other industrial enterprises, dependant upon mining operations in the Cripple Creek district. The building of the first of the Colorado City plants resulted in the first profitable industrial enterprise ever located of any size, at Colorado Springs or Colorado City.

The dividends the United States Reduction & Refining company are enabled to pay, result from a carefully conducted business by business men applying business methods. If the present absurdly high cost to mine ore could be proportionately reduced, as have been treatment rates in the past few years, the balance sheets of many mines would present a far better showing for their stockholders.

It is an undisputable fact, to the careful and fair observer that the treatment charges, as deducted today, are but about 20 per cent of the cost to actually mine ore that many large mines know. It is to be regretted that mining costs cannot be reduced in the same proportion as the treatment rates have been.

Besides, these treatment charges have been gradually reduced to the present low rate notwithstanding the cost of all chemicals and materials used in the treatment of ores, and also the cost of labor, which have increased very perceptibly during the past four years.

NO SICKNESS IS MORE DISTRESSING

Than That Resulting from Diseases of the Stomach!

The gloomy forebodings that comes with diseases of the stomach often results in failure in business insanity and suicide. A man with a first-class stomach may fail in business but his body and brain are still fed with GOOD, PURE BLOOD and he soon ceases to worry over his losses, and starts anew and acquires a fortune again. Not so with the dyspeptic. Failure means to him the end. He sees nothing but gloom ahead. He despairs and gives up the battle and easily becomes the useless old man in everybody's way, or else an early grave marks his end.

In no one disease has the treatment and skill of Dr. Phillips been more convincingly shown than in the cure of DISEASES of the STOMACH. It is almost shocking to think of the severe and heroic methods of treatment used only a few years ago by all orthodox practitioners, a purge or an emetic, drugs that inflame and irritate the delicate mucous lining of the stomach and increased the suffering rather than allayed it in short called fits to a smouldering fire. The treatment that Dr. Phillips uses today is distinctly palliative. It relieves in one or two doses and if continued will permanently cure.

Everyone has a stomach but some people are never made aware of the fact except when they have eaten too heavy a meal. The majority of the people are constantly aware of the existence of this organ by experiencing pain or distress over the region of the stomach. A PERSON WITH A HEALTHY STOMACH will eat a meal and in a period following the food taking will have a contented satisfied sensation. Not so with one whose stomach is disordered. Such a one if he does not eat, will have suffering come to worry him for having neglected eating or after he has eaten will have a feeling of being too full or there will be pain or a gnawing sensation belching up gas heartburn palpitation or pain near the heart irregular bowels, coated tongue etc.

NO WASTE OF TIME

Relief comes in a few weeks by the methods employed by Dr. Phillips. There is no one class of patients where the marked superiority of Dr. Phillips' quick and sure system of curing over the slow and expensive methods of the old school is better illustrated than in people past middle life. In such cases when catarrhal infection has invaded the stomach and bowels causing loss of energy with complicated nervous troubles this treatment is prompt and efficient. Read what a

POLICE OFFICER SAYS

I has been a sufferer from catarrh of the stomach in a bad form perhaps in its very worst form for 15 years and I will give Dr. Phillips the credit of giving me more relief than any other treatment I had ever tried. The doctor relieved me in a much shorter time than I had thought it possible. He did not use strong medicines but seemed to thoroughly understand the case from the beginning and now my health is good and I can say anything I want without experiencing any pain or discomfort whatever. A NEW BUREAU.

Geological Survey to Have Charge of Bureau.

Since the passage of the irrigation bill there has been a good deal of speculation as to whether a new bureau would be erected to take charge of its administration. It is now definitely known, however, that the great national policy which the act provides for will be carried out by the secretary of the interior through the geological survey as at present constituted under the immediate supervision of Mr. Charles D. Wolcott, the director, and Mr. F. H. Newell, the chief of the hydrographic bureau of the survey.

"The friends of the measure," said Representative Raeder, who had practical charge of the bill in the house, "are gratified to know that this will be done, because it removes any danger of the work falling into the hands of untried men. The work of the survey in all its relations to the development of the irrigation resources of the arid region has been eminently satisfactory to the people of the west who are familiar with what has been so far accomplished. Mr. Newell has been in charge of the work for 14 years. He entered the employ of the geological survey under Major Powell, who may really be said to be the father of the national irrigation policy, and his great conception of the marvelous possibilities of the arid region under a national plan for its development seems now about to be realized. Mr. Newell has made almost a life study of the subject, and is probably more familiar than any other man in the United States, with the irrigation resources of the west and what must be done to accomplish the purposes of the new national irrigation law which has been well designated the new homestead law.

"The fact is fully recognized by those who will have the administration of the new law and by the western senators and representatives who have worked so hard for its enactment that it is the part of wisdom to proceed with great care without undue haste in carrying its provisions into effect. It is believed that this view will have the approval of the people of the west generally, and that there will not be any such wild scramble as some have predicted to get reservoirs built right away in every western congressional district. The fact is that the western people have been fighting for a principle rather than for any specific application of it, and now that congress has formally adopted and inaugurated the policy for which they have contended they are more interested to secure a wise and conservative administration of that policy, so as to demonstrate its practical benefits, than to crowd for the immediate construction of works in every local section of the west.

"A more conservative plan than this irrigation act for the solution of the great problem of the reclamation of the arid region could not be devised. The proceeds from the sales of public lands in the arid and semi-arid states amount to about $2,500,000 a year. The irrigation act sets apart these proceeds, whatever they may be, as a revolving construction fund in the treasury and authorizes the secretary of the interior to use it for the construction of irrigation works for the reclamation of the arid public lands. The lands reclaimed are reserved exclusively for actual settlers only, under the homestead law, who must live on the land five years before they can get title. The total cost of each system of works is to be a charge against the lands reclaimed under it, and each settler must pay back to the government, in 10 annual installments his proportion of the cost of the works. The entire investment of the government in each system would, therefore, come back to it in 10 years' time and as it came back, from year to year, it would be available for the construction of new works.

"It is really astonishing the way this fund accumulates. Taking it by 10-year periods, with the average receipt from new land sales of $2,500,000 a year, the amount available from this source for the first 10 years would be $25,000,000. In the second 10 years this same amount would be duplicated and the $25,000,000 invested during the first 10 years would come back and be reinvested in new works in the second 10 years, thus making a total investment in the second 10 years of $50,000,000 in the construction of new systems. In the third 10 years another $25,000,000 would come in from sales and the whole $75,000,000 invested in the second 10 years would come back for reinvestment, making a grand total invested in the construction of new works in the 30 years of $150,000,000. This whole sum would come back to the government in the fouth 10-year period, and could be reinvested again and again until the whole vast area of irrigable arid public land has been reclaimed and settled and at the end the whole sum will finally be returned to the government.

"It is, of course, impossible to construct such irrigation works to reclaim the arid public lands without including under some of the systems lands which have been already taken up, and it would be the height of injustice to say to the actual settler who went there and built his home before the works were planned that he was barred for all time from any chance of getting water for his land from the government system. The bill has been most carefully drawn to cover this contingency. The actual settler who lives on his land can, on payment of his share of the cost of the works, get water, but for not more than 160 acres, and the granting of water rights to non-resident owners of large tracts is carefully safeguarded against and forbidden.

"Every feature and provision of the bill has been framed with the utmost caution and care to carry out the policy declared for in President Roosevelt's message to congress and in the last annual report of the secretary of the interior of making the remaining public lands available for home-makers and creating opportunities for millions of our citizens to become independent home owners.

"The administration of the measure is in the hands of its friends. There is not a shadow of doubt that the measure will be so enforced as to carry out this central idea and guard against every attempt at speculation or land grabbing or land or water monopoly under it. The president is known to have his whole heart in this great national home-making plan, and he may be depended on not to permit it to miscarry.

"During the debate on the bill much was said by those opposed to it about the iniquity of taxing the eastern farmer to create competition with him. The fact is that not a dollar of taxes will be laid on any eastern farmer under this law and no competition with him will be created. The building of these great government irrigation works must necessarily proceed so slowly that the new areas brought under cultivation will not keep pace with our rapidly increasing population, and the eastern farmer, instead of being injured, will be benefited by the greatly increased demand for the manufactured products of the eastern factories, whose operatives the eastern farmer feeds.

"This was well expressed by the president in his message to congress, where he said: 'The increased demand for manufactured articles will stimulate industrial production, while wider home markets and the trade of Asia will consume the larger food supplies and effectually prevent western competition with eastern agriculture. Indeed, the products of irrigation will be consumed chiefly in upbuilding local centers of mining and other industries, which would otherwise not come into existence at all. Our people as a whole will profit, for successful home-making is but another name for the upbuilding of the nation.'"
